

Butler Sentence Ordered

ST. LOUIS (AP)—Landon V. Butler of Memphis, Tenn., was ordered today to surrender by April 7 to begin serving a prison sentence for illegal interstate shipment of about $17,000 worth of soybeans and corn.

The 8th Circuit Court of Appeals ordered the surrender after the U. S. Supreme Court refused last week to review Butler's conviction. He was found guilty in November 1963 in district court at Cape Girardeau, Mo., and was sentenced to 10 years in prison and fined $10,000.

He had been free on $50,000 bond.

Dedication of Arch Delayed

ST. LOUIS AP -- Dedication of the Gateway Arch has again been postponed. The dedication was first scheduled last October, then May 30 and now it possibly won't be held until next year.

George B. Hartzog Jr., director of the National Park Service, said Wednesday the May 30 dedication date for the Jefferson National Expansion Memorial, of which the arch is the center, was premature.

The $18 million stainless steel arch, the tallest national monument at 630 feet, was completed last October. However, Hartzog said landscaping at the memorial and the underground visitor center, which will lead to elevated trains that ride to the top of the arch, are not as near completion as the Park Service would have liked.

Mayor A. J. Cervantes and the Bicentennial Celebration Committee, which is in charge of the city's 200th birthday, said they still will have a Memorial Day program to climax the two-year bicentennial.

Election May Be Held in Late April

ORAN -- G. K. Patterson, president of the Scott County board of education, said today that possibly a redistricting election would be held late in April.

The two-district consolidation of the county's school districts was approved Monday by the state board of education. County people must vote on the proposal to establish one north and one south district within 60 days.

Sikeston and Scott Central would be in a R-2 district. Districts R-1, R-2, R-3, R-4 and C-7 would be in the R-1 district.

No date has been set for the county board of education to fix the election date.

Jackson Retiring, Eyes New Career

By Leo Schade

MOREHOUSE -- Supt. of Schools Horace L. Jackson, a dean in the teaching profession, will wind up his career at the end of the school year. He will then have completed his 51st year of teaching.

"If I had it to do over, I'd go back to school teaching," he said.

He may get his wish. His retirement will not be final. "I understand there is room for additional counseling, and I may go into that field, as long as I feel as healthy as I do now," he said.

It took him 25 years to receive all of his teaching requirements, having completed his bachelor of science degree at Southeast Missouri State Teachers College in Cape Girardeau in 1928, after 15 years of teaching. He received his master's degree in 1938 from the University of Missouri in Columbia.

The 70-year-old schoolmaster, started teaching in North Cape Girardeau county in 1913, after completing one and one-half years of high school. "In those days," said Jackson, "most high schools had teaching training courses for rural school teaching, and the pay was very low, sometimes as low as $30 per month."

His early teaching began in the neighborhood where he was born, near Fruitland. He taught one year each in Cape Girardeau county in the Brick school, Poplar Ridge and Williams Creek. He then taught in the Dogwood schools two years.

His teaching career was cut short when World War I broke out. He was in the army one and one-half years, one year in France.

He returned to school teaching. He became principal of the Osceola, Ark., high school, under Supt. George Doyle, for one year.

He came back to Missouri, and married a childhood sweetheart, Vera Anderson. Both went to Williamsville to teach for two years.

Mrs. Jackson will complete her 28th year in teaching this year, and will end her career in two years in the Richland elementary schools.

Her career was interrupted by the addition of two members to the family, a son and a daughter. The daughter is Mrs. Arthur E. Jackson, Cape Girardeau, and the son is Charles W. Jackson, a real estate man in Spokane, Wash.

The Morehouse superintendent and his wife will move at the end of his school term to Dexter, where they have purchased a new home at 703 Grant St.

In his teaching career, he taught at 12 schools, which besides the small rural schools, Osceola and Williamsville, were as superintendent two years at Puxico, one at Illinois, 14 years at Benton, nine years at Ste. Genevieve and six years at Bernie. He is completing his tenth year at Morehouse.

He has seen education progress from the one-room school to the large re-organized schools, and at Bernie five school bond issues were approved during his superintendency.

Last year he was honored by the Southeast Missouri District Teachers association as an outstanding school man.

SUPT. HORACE JACKSON, of the Morehouse public schools will end 51 years of teaching in June.

Unable to Fire Damages Duck Ducks Steel Buiding

David Freeman, 29, experienced an unusual auto accident yesterday at 4:30 p.m., on highway 77, three miles south of Charleston. Freeman escaped injury.

He was driving a 1965 Rambler, when two ducks flew across the highway, breaking his windshield. The ducks were killed.

They were tame birds belonging to Clarence Randall of Charleston.

A steel storage building, used by Bob McCord, behind the Edwards IGA, on West Malone, slightly was damaged by fire at 9 a.m. today.

The blaze started when trash was being burned back of the building, catching paper plates stored in the rear of the building, on fire.

The damage was confined to scattered merchandise, old records and from water.

Netherlands Princess Marries German Diplomat

AMSTERDAM, the Netherlands (AP) -- Crown Princess Beatrix, the future queen of the Netherlands, married a handsome German diplomat today as 1,000 demonstrators tried to march on the royal palace. Clock-swinging police beat them back.

The bridegroom, Claus von Amsberg, 39, grew up under Hitler and as a youth served in the German army. The marriage made him a prince of the Netherlands, entitled him to an annual allowance of $83,000, and changed his name to the Dutch, Van Amsberg.

The demonstrators, most of them youths, shouted condemnations of the bridegroom and republican slogans but were about half a mile from the wedding procession through Amsterdam.

The police dispersed the crowd as it started to march on the palace.

In the former Jewish quarter flowers were placed at the monument to the wartime resistance movement against the Germans. Youths also set off smoke-bombs in protest against the marriage.

But thousands of Dutchmen, many waving flags, cheered the 28-year-old "smiling princess" and her bridegroom as the bridal procession moved through Amsterdam.

The government had proclaimed a national holiday, but the turnout fell far short of what palace officials had hoped for. Some observers estimated about 80,000 lined the five-mile route. Police said that 250,000 could be accommodated.

Beatrix was deeply moved and appeared on the verge of tears as the minister delivered the wedding sermon on the theme "Narrow is the road which is leading to heaven, I am your Lord, follow me."

Von Amsberg looked grave.

The minister, the Rev. Johannes Hendrik Sillescu Smitt, made an indirect reference to the protests about the marriage as he gave this advice: "Is it possible to face heartless criticism, to face disrespectful threat without becoming bitter? Yes."

Von Amsberg's hand trembled and he had trouble putting the ring on her finger. Beatrix took over and helped. Both smiled at the fumbling.

A simple civil ceremony in Amsterdam's City Hall preceded the glittering church wedding before a gathering of Europe's dwindling royalty.

The traditional marriage oath "to heed and obey" was omitted from the rites of the Dutch Reformed Church.

Amid the pomp and pageantry a restlessness ran through the Dutch nation, where five years of Nazi wartime occupation left deep scars.

The heaviest security forces in this ancient city's history -- about 10,000 police and troops -- were strung along the royal route.

Beatrix's wedding gown was of white satin in fitted "princess line" style with long sleeves and high neckline. The train, starting from the waist, was 15 feet long and seven feet wide.

She wore a short veil and the tiara of pearls and diamonds her grandmother Queen Wilhelmina wore when she married a German, Prince Hendrik, in 1900.

Mayor Gijbert Van Hal, in pronouncing Beatrix and her choice man and wife, touched on the tenseness of the day and those ahead.

Speaking directly to the new Dutch prince, he mentioned the "many hours which were certainly not easy for you" and said: "I am certain that, as more people meet you and our nation comes to know you better, their confidence in you and respect for you will grow."

Europeans watched the ceremonies over television, in the countries covered by the Eurovision network.

Garrison Lost to Enemy

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP) -- North Vietnamese regulars overwhelmed the isolated Ashau Special Forces camp tonight after a fierce, two-day fight put up by several hundred mountain tribesmen and their 15 to 20 U.S. advisers.

The commander of the U.S. Special Forces detachment at Da Nang, Lt. Col. Kenneth B. Lacey, pronounced the doom of the garrison which is in the forested hills near the Laotian border. "We closed Ashau at 5:45 p.m. this evening," he said.

Casualties among both the Americans and Montagnard defenders were heavy. But Col. William McKean, commander of Special Forces in the area 360 miles north of Saigon said his men "fought every inch of the way" and he thought the Communist loss was also high.

The Communists took the triangular-shaped fortress after it had been pounded into ruins and flames by Red attack and U.S. planes trying to drive them off. Heavy clouds, at times cutting the ceiling to 200 feet, seriously hindered the American pilots flying in almost over the tree tops.

Until the end the American "Green Berets" and their tough little Montagnard troops clung doggedly to a single bunker on the camp's northern trench line.

The attackers were described as a reinforced North Vietnamese regiment. Originally, they had been thought to be two companies -- 200 or so men -- of

Board Acts on Error

By DAN WHITTE

CHARLESTON -- A special high school bond election March 29 was approved yesterday by the Charleston R-1 board of education after heated debate.

This resulted after it was decided that bonds approved in an election March 2, 1965 for a $1,400,000 new high school building were invalid.

The district was enlarged after the election and before the bonds were sold.

On April 7, a new reorganized district was formed by merging the Charleston R-1, Bertrand R-6, Thompson Bend R-1 and Texas Bend R-2 districts.

The voters in the districts that were merged with Charleston did not vote in the bond election for the new high school.

"If you try to keep people from voting, you run into trouble," Bob Jackson, board member said.

Supt. of Schools W. R. "Bud" Pierce Jr. told Jackson that there were other reasons involved and that he would talk with him in private but wouldn't take up the board's time.

Jackson said questions should have been asked for the election was held at a time to keep the people in the merged districts from voting.

The district's bond attorneys in St. Louis said yesterday they could not give their unqualified approval to the issuance of the bonds approved last year.

This same firm will handle the bond issue for the special election.

In the bond election voters approved the new building 1,808 to 499.

The special election again will require a two-thirds majority of those voting for approval.

According to Pierce, the only other alternative, was court action, which he said, "would be a slow legal process."

It was not until the bond attorneys March 2 examination of the final transcript of the school reorganization proceedings that they realized that reorganization had taken place since the voting of the bonds.

Pierce said this morning that he didn't know what the first election cost the district.

Carl Trauernicht Jr., of the bonding attorney organization in St. Louis, said today that he didn't think there would be any additional cost to the Charleston R-1 district to retain his firm for the special election.

Pierce said the new election will cost approximately $350 exclusive of attorney fees.

Pierce predicted that the bond issue would carry again.

"The reason for the time of the previous election was that there were four elections facing the people," Pierce said and the date was chosen to permit voters to act on it first.

The elections involved were for reorganization, an annual school election, an election of board members and the bond election.

"Since these elections were coming about within a two-month period and it is difficult to get people out for more than one election and since more importance was placed on the bond election it was placed first on the docket," Pierce said.

Ground for the new high school was broken Tuesday.

Pierce said that the Clinton Construction Company of Sikeston still expects to complete the building June 30, 1967, the original date set for building the school, if voters again approve the bond issue.

Polling places for the March 29 election will be at Anniston, Bertrand, Wyatt and the Armory and in Charleston. The election will be held from 6 a.m. to 7 p.m.

Pre-registration Set for April 4

BENTON -- Scott County R-IV school district will hold pre-registration April 4 at 10 a.m. at the three elementary schools for kindergarten and first grade students.

Each child should register at the school he will attend.

Kindergarten students must be five years of age by Oct. 1 and first grade students must have attained the age of six on or before Oct. 1. Each child must furnish proof of birth.

Any child now attending kindergarten in Scott county need not register for first grade.

Accused Klansman Heart Victim

BESSEMER, Ala. AP -- William Orville Eaton, 41, one of three Ku Klux Klansmen charged with the murder in the slaying of civil rights worker Viola Gregg Liuzzo, died of a heart attack today.

Eaton and fellow Klansmen Eugene Thomas of Bessemer and Collie Leroy Wilkins Jr., of Fairfield, all of the Birmingham area, were convicted by a federal court in Montgomery last fall of conspiracy charges.

Stoddard: U. S. 60--Planting trees and shrubs about 2.5 miles east of Fisk and about four miles east of Fisk.

Urban system projects:

Dunklin: Rt. 84 -- .8 mile of 36-foot asphaltic concrete resurfacing in Kennett.

Dunklin: Rt. 25 spur VV-.8 mile of 21 and 24-foot asphaltic concrete resurfacing in Kennett from Rt. 84 south.

OPEN DOOR POLICY

GREENSBORO, N.C. -- Roger Pruitt of Greensboro found the front door open at the branch of the North Carolina National Bank and walked in. After peering through the open door of the bank vault, he realized he was all alone with the bank's money. Although the tank had closed some time earlier, neither the front door nor the vault had been locked.

Pruitt called the police and stood by the open vault until they arrived with bank officials and some embarrassed employees.

Garrison Lost to Enemy

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP) — North Vietnamese regulars overwhelmed the isolated Ashau Special Forces camp tonight after a fierce, two-day fight put up by several hundred mountain tribesmen and their 15 to 20 U.S. advisers.

The commander of the U.S. Special Forces detachment at Da Nang, Lt. Col. Kenneth B. Lacey, pronounced the doom of the garrison which is in the forested hills near the Laotian border. "We closed Ashau at 5:45 p.m. this evening," he said.

The Communists took the triangular-shaped fortress after it had been pounded into ruins and flames by Red attack and U.S. planes trying to drive them off. Heavy clouds, at times cutting the ceiling to 200 feet, seriously hindered the American pilots flying in almost over the tree tops.

Until the end the American "Green Berets" and their tough little Montagnard troops clung doggedly to a single bunker on the camp's northern trench line.

The attackers were described as a reinforced North Vietnamese regiment. Originally, they had been thought to be two companies — 200 or so men — of

The traditional marriage oath "to heed and obey" was omitted from the rites of the Dutch Reformed Church.

Amid the pomp and pageantry a restlessness ran through the Dutch nation, where five years of Nazi wartime occupation left deep scars.

The heaviest security forces in this ancient city's history — about 10,000 police and troops — were strung along the royal route.

Beatrix's wedding gown was of white satin in fitted "princess line" style with long sleeves and high neckline. The train, starting from the waist, was 15 feet long and seven feet wide.

Accused Slayer Waives Hearing

NEW MADRID -- Mrs. Louise Reddick, charged with first degree murder, was among the more than 20 who faced Magistrate Erie Wright of Portageville in magistrate court.

Mrs. Reddick is charged with having shot to death her husband, Leon Reddick, following an argument at their home in Portageville Saturday night.

She waived her preliminary hearing before Judge Wright and was bound over to circuit court with bond set at $5,000.

Two persons faced two felony charges, J. T. Pearson and John L. Davis both waived preliminary hearings on charges of grand larceny and tampering with a motor vehicle. They were ordered held for the circuit courts with bonds set at $500 each on each count.

Thomas Monroe Alford, charged with burglary and larceny, also waived his preliminary hearing in the lower court and was held for circuit court on $500 bond.

Speeders were the chief misdemeanor offenders with 11 paying fines; Loyd M. Mallett and Albert B. McClendon, $25 each, Albert Jaffe, Jimmy Dale King, and Major D. Hentz, $20 each, David Harold Wallace, Fred Hanks, and George Norman Mitchem, $15 each, Benny Joe McAtee and Mildred Elois

Smith, $11 each.

No Missouri public service commission authority brought fines of $110 each to Sam L. Buchanan and Larry Tidwell.

Others fined for traffic violations were Rufus Luckett, $45, and Robert A. LaVelle, $35, careless and reckless driving; Denner Company, $11, expired trailer license; Robert Patton, $15, unlicensed operator; Louis Moore, $15, operating a vehicle with out-of-state license; John Wesley Johnson, $15, defective brakes; and Cranford Lee Cobb, $25, operating a motor vehicle with stolen or borrowed licenses.

Pre-registration Set for April 4

BENTON -- Scott County R-IV school district will hold pre-registration April 4 at 10 a.m. at the three elementary schools for kindergarten and first grade students.

Each child should register at the school he will attend. Kindergarten students must be five years of age by Oct. 1 and first grade students must have attained the age of six on or before Oct. 1. Each child must furnish proof of birth.

Any child now attending kindergarten in Scott county need not register for first grade.

Board Acts on Error

By DAN WHITTE
CHARLESTON -- A special high school bond election March 29 was approved yesterday by the Charleston R-1 board of education after heated debate.

This resulted after it was decided that bonds approved in an election March 2, 1965 for a $1,400,000 new high school building were invalid.

The district was enlarged after the election and before the bonds were sold.

On April 7, a new reorganized district was formed by merging the Charleston R-1, Bertrand R-6, Thompson Bend R-1 and Texas Bend R-2 districts.

The voters in the districts that were merged with Charleston did not vote in the bond election for the new high school.

"If you try to keep people from voting, you run into trouble," Bob Jackson, board member said.

Supt. of Schools W. R. "Bud" Pierce Jr. told Jackson that there were other reasons involved and that he would talk with him in private but wouldn't take up the board's time.

Jackson said questions should have been asked for the election was held at a time to keep the people in the merged districts from voting.

The district's bond attorneys in St. Louis said yesterday they could not give their unqualified approval to the issuance of the bonds approved last year.

This same firm will handle the bond issue for the special election.

In the bond election voters approved the new building, 1,808 to 499.

The special election again will require a two-thirds majority of those voting for approval.

According to Pierce, the only other alternative, was court action, which he said, "would be a slow legal process."

It was not until the bond attorneys March 2 examination of the final transcript of the school reorganization proceedings that they realized that reorganization had taken place since the voting of the bonds.

Pierce said this morning that he didn't know what the first election cost the district.

Carl Trauernich Jr., of the bonding attorney organization in St. Louis, said today that he didn't think there would be any additional cost to the Charleston R-1 district to retain his firm for the special election.

Pierce said the new election will cost approximately $350 exclusive of attorney fees.

Pierce predicted that the bond issue would carry again.

"The reason for the time of the previous election was that there were four elections facing the people," Pierce said and the date was chosen to permit voters to act on it first.

The elections involved were for reorganization, an annual school election, an election of board members and the bond election.

"Since these elections were coming about within a two-month period and it is difficult to get people out for more than one election and since more importance was placed on the bond election it was placed first on the docket," Pierce said.

Ground for the new high school was broken Tuesday. Pierce said that the Clinton Construction Company of Sikeston still expects to complete the building June 30, 1967, the original date set for building the school, if voters again approve the bond issue.

Polling places for the March 29 election will be at Aniston, Bertrand, Wyatt and the Armory and in Charleston. The election will be held from 6 a.m. to 7 p.m.

OPEN DOOR POLICY

GREENSBORO, N.C. -- Roger Pruitt of Greensboro found the front door open at the branch of the North Carolina National Bank and walked in. After peering through the open door of the bank vault, he realized he was all alone with the bank's money.

Although the bank had closed some time earlier, neither the front door nor the vault had been locked.

Pruitt called the police and stood by the open vault until they arrived with bank officials and some embarrassed employees.

POOR CHARLIE SAYS!

Thursday, March 10, 902 - Jwlania invaded by a plague of locusts.

One of the things that Secretary of State Dean Rusk was supposed to tell the Senate Foreign Relations committee was whether Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey's pledge of "all necessary assistance" to Southeast Asia countries involves fighting for them.

This is a good example of a Senate committee performing a disservice to the country.

Rusk should not be asked to give such testimony whether it is disclosed to the public or not.

If the testimony were given secretly the information might be expected to leak out. Senators have a reputation for talking. If the Communists learn which countries for which this nation would not be inclined to fight they would be encouraged to conquer them either by subversion or military means.

The United States learned how dangerous this type of talk can be in Korea. The fact that Americans in official life had expressed the opinion that South Korea was not worth defending probably encouraged the Communists to try to take it over. The Korean conflict resulted with United States soldiers fighting to prevent the Communists from conquering the country.

It is wrong to give the Communists a blueprint of what this country will defend by fighting and what it won't. In doing this, the United is playing right into the hands of the enemy.

Sen. J. W. Fulbright, chairman of the committee, has offered a rider to the foreign aid appropriation bill saying that approval cannot be construed as a commitment to defend the benefiting nations with American forces. The rider is all right as far as it goes but it should not serve as an instrument to show the Communists and the world where our troops will fight and more importantly perhaps, where they won't fight.

Humphrey obviously doesn't have the right to go around the world pledging support by American troops and Congress does have a role with the nation's chief executive in a declaration of war.

A delicate domestic balance of power is involved but no good purpose is served by telling our enemies in advance what this country will or will not do.

Private testimony before a Senate committee isn't any better than broadcasting the news to the world if that is the final result anyway.

Esquire Harrison says: "Some people don't have much to say, but you have to listen a long time to find it out."

SOCIETY OF SQUARES

After listening to numerous discussions of the Great Society and the so-called Poverty Program, we have come to the conclusion that the free-loaders have built themselves a political organization while the square-shooters and honest hard-workers seem to be outnumbered because they haven't organized to show their strength.

A preacher friend sent a little essay he wrote that will qualify him for a membership in the Society of Squares. He talks about government. "What does my government owe me?"

"...Only those freedoms and privileges guaranteed by the Constitution. These do not include a living or a guaranteed income.

"What do I owe my government?...Interest...loyalty...service...defense.

"I also owe my government critical analysis...and the expression of my convictions with the greatest weapon ever placed in the hands of men--the ballot."

For your information, there is no membership fee to join our Society of Squares, but there are qualifications that must be passed, such as: working for a living and the good of the community, paying your taxes and personal bills, no free-loading on the welfare rolls and unemployment compensation "clubs", supporting your church and other institutions as your personal obligation, and getting a lump in your throat whenever Old Glory, the American flag, passes by. No doubt, our readers can name many other things that make a square the square-shooter he is.

We'll be waiting to hear from more qualifying members of the Society of Squares who need to stand up and be counted now--not later.

VOICES OF EXPERIENCE

Many persons and many businesses have profited through the years by listening and adhering to the advice of persons of authority by virtue of long experience. Three such voices spoke out recently in support of the matchless value of newspaper advertising. Down through the years newspapers have preached this truth at the risk of being accused of being bias, but now comes that same truth from three merchandising leaders who are just as biased in support of local newspapers.

Without further comment, which is unnecessary, here are the names of the three and their comments, which were delivered before three separate large groups of business representatives within the scope of their own business:

Carl Uren, assistant advertising director of Chevrolet:

"We regard the newspaper as the most local, retail and urgent of the media we use because newspaper readership is nearly universal; we know that at the same time we are reaching the mass audience, we are reaching the single, mostly likely group of prospects we have--present and satisfied owners."

Orville W. Johler, Vice President for advertising of the Independent Grocers' Alliance: "Nothing excels newspapers when it comes to selling merchandise or building a substantial image for the company. No other media that I know of can give you the cooperation of the dual job of selling merchandise and building a solid image of your store that comes anywhere near the newspapers in the towns you serve."

David L. Yunich, president of Macy's Department store in New York, one of the world's largest retail establishments:

"Retailers must invite; they must attract people to their stores. The most powerful way of doing this is through advertising in strong, interesting and widely read local newspapers. The newspaper is the backbone of the retail advertising structure."

The Colonel said: "As you get along in years you will notice there are many people in this old world who want to run the other fellow's business.

MEDICAL INSURANCE DEADLINE MAR. 31 Medicare's 2 parts -- hospital insurance to help pay costs of hospital care, and medical insurance to help pay doctors' bills--go into effect July 1.

People 65 and over getting social security or railroad retirement monthly benefits will have hospital insurance automatically.

But, medical insurance is voluntary and costs $3 a month. The Government pays an equal amount. People who were 65 by 1966 must enroll by March 31 to have this protection when it begins.

Nearly everyone 65 and over can have medicare protection, even if they never worked under social security, but they must apply. Check with any social security office for information.

The word "vaccination" comes from the Latin word "Vacca," meaning cow. The term originally referred only to the injection of cowpox virus into the body to prevent smallpox.

Austin Smith, M.D., writing in Emory University Quarterly, says: "Drugs of the future will be better tolerated by patients and will act with greater specificity. In the field of radiology, new agents will facilitate x-ray diagnostic procedures of the brain. Space medicine research promises to bring a beneficial fall-out of drugs for use in vestibular malfunctions, protection from harmful radiation, and reduction in fatigue. Other exotic areas of research may produce compounds that offer protection from extreme heat, and others from extreme cold. A pill that would repel insects is another possibility. The future of drug research was never brighter. The results will add to man's longevity, and will reduce the discomfort, suffering, and disability of disease."

Heard at the coffee table: "If you don't think things are as bad as they're painted, visit a modern art exhibit.

The 1965 peanut crop is placed at nearly 2 1/2 billion pounds -- 13 percent more than a year earlier, due to a record yield per acre.

OCEAN GOING SUCCESS STORY

Segments of our merchant marine face a decline even though the American flag now flies over the fastest and finest cargo and passenger liners that sail the seas of the world today. The latter are under rigid government contracts to operate under the U.S. flag regularly, in good times and bad, on foreign trade routes the government designates as essential. Explaining this situation, an official of one of our leading shipping companies has pointed out that we have four distinct mer-living as an electronics expert. It is not surprising that he could fix Michael's Ferrari.

"Daddy, can you fly an airplane?" asked the 9-year-old. "No, Nicky, flying airplanes is not among my accomplishments."

"David's uncle can. He owns his own airplane. He took David to Miami."

"We aren't wealthy enough to own an airplane. Besides, I can't stand the heat in Miami."

"Daddy, could you change a tire?"

"I could if we had a jack. I keep forgetting to buy one."

"If we have a flat tire will you have to call a mechanic?"

"As matters stand, yes."

"All right, daddy. Will you help us with our arithmetic?"

"It's the binary system again, isn't it? I'm sorry, but they didn't teach that when I was in school."

"Daddy, are you awfully old?"

"I wasn't when I woke up this morning, but I just aged 10 years."

Temporarily Interred

chant marines, each operating in a different manner, serving a different market and facing different earnings and growth prospects.

The Merchant Marine Act of 1936 recognized the fact that long term American flag liner operation on foreign trade routes would be impossible without government providing a cushion against competition of foreign shipping which has the advantage of lower construction and operating costs. Differential subsidies were provided for one segment of our merchant marine to ensure that the United States would have control of a fast modern fleet of cargo and passenger liners operating on world trade routes deemed essential to this country's economic and military security. This legislation has been successful in achieving its purpose.

But the three other segments of our merchant marine present a different picture. They are the contract and bulk carriers, commonly known as tramp steamers, tankers in international service, and dry cargo ships and tankers engaged in the domestic trade. The Merchant Marine Act was not intended to include these and they have been up against lower cost foreign shipping and in the case of coastwise trade the natural competition of alternative land transport as well. Some extensions of the subsidy program may become necessary as, for example, in the case of routes to our overseas states and territories which should not be left dependent on foreign flag shipping.

But let's recognize that our national maritime policy has been highly successful in the area it was intended to cover. If changes are needed, they should be made as the shipping spokesman states, "...deliberately, with full knowledge of specific problems and prospects and after realistic assessment of our National desires, objectives, costs and benefits."

CARS ARE SAFER: DRIVING IS NOT

The automobile industry has been the target for an increasing amount of criticism of late. Faced with the ghastly statistic of nearly 50,000 traffic deaths in 1965, it is only human nature to seek an obvious scapegoat to put the blame on.

But while there is undoubted ground for criticism and vast room for improvement, the auto makers have done a creditable job of improving the safety of motor vehicles over the years, if only because of the fortunate fact that safety and salability are not always mutually exclusive.

Highway User magazine gave manufacturers an opportunity to state their case in a recent issue.

Although cars no longer come with heavy, kick-proof fenders, what's underneath is much tougher than it used to be, the makers contend. Broken axles, for example, were once commonplace but are rare today. Aside from increased durability, many other safety improvements have gone virtually unheralded, such as safety rim wheels, interlocking door latches, deep-dish steering wheels, padded dashes.

The latest item on 1966 cars is windshield glass twice as shatter-resistant as the old type.

It almost seems as if safety has to be slipped into car design unobtrusively or the public won't accept it. A prime example is the push-button shift located on the driver's side of the dash. People wouldn't buy it, preferring to go on impaling themselves on the conventional lever.

Washington Merry - Go - Round

By Drew Pearson

WASHINGTON -- Publicly President Johnson scored a resounding victory in the Senate debate on Viet Nam. But below the surface, scars are deep. Some of his most vigorous supporters of the Great Society program are bitter.

This was made all too clear at a closed-door meeting of "Dove" senators who had previously signed the resolution proposed by Sen. Vance Hartke, Ind., urging peace in Viet Nam. Criticism of the Democratic president by Democratic senators at this session was vitriolic in the extreme. LBJ was called a "desperate man," a "wild animal" who was taking the country into war with China.

The meeting of Senate "Doves" -- all Democrats -- took place just one day before the Senate was scheduled to vote on the resolution of Sen. Wayne Morse, Ore., to rescind the Bay of Tonkin Resolution which, in the fall of 1964, gave Johnson an overwhelming endorsement for what was then a much smaller and less dangerous Viet Nam war. Though news and TV reporters got wind of the closed-door meeting and interviewed Sen. William Fulbright, Ark., at its termination, Fulbright was very restrained in what he said. He gave no hint of the emotional, vitriolic debate which had taken place inside.

First order of business was to try to persuade Sen. Morse not to proceed with his resolution. Other senators argued that the overwhelming majority of the Senate would line up against him and this would be considered a significant defeat for advocates of peace.

Morse replied that he had made commitments and could not withdraw his resolution. It was then proposed that another, milder resolution be introduced, putting the Senate on record against escalating the war. Such a resolution, it was argued, would not move votes than the more drastic Morse Resolution.

Sen. Fulbright was against this strategy, argued that such a resolution would get only 15 or 16 votes and thus would be considered a great Johnson victory.

EMOTIONAL CRITICISM Sen. Eugene McCarthy of Minnesota argued the other way. He maintained that it was better to get 15 votes than to make no test at all. Fifteen or 16 votes, he said, would be a big increase from the two votes expected for the Morse Resolution and would be a warning to the President, McCarthy got quite worked up over the danger of war.

We've got a wild man in the White House, he said, and we're going to have to treat him as such.

Sen. Albert Gore of Tennessee was also critically emotional. He described the President as a "desperate man who was likely to get us into war with China, and we have got to prevent it. We all like the President, but we've got to stop him!"

Sen. Fulbright, chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, differed with McCarthy, claimed it was better to avoid a showdown which the public could point to as a defeat for the "Doves" and a victory for Johnson.

Bobby Kennedy agreed that the resolution against escalation of the war was desirable but was inclined to side with Fulbright that a showing of only 15 or 16 votes would not particularly impress the public or the President. The Senator from New York was careful to steer clear of any strong language against the President. This was one of the few meetings where the brother of the late president has teamed up with Senate dissenters. Though frequently dissenting in the past, he has been a lone wolf.

Sen. Stephen Young of Ohio supported Gene McCarthy's view that even 15 or 16 votes against the President would be a healthy warning not to let the war get out of hand.

The meeting finally adjourned with no plans for a resolution. But the opposition expressed by these Democratic senators against their Democratic leader in the White House ran deep, and obviously will continue.

No Republicans attended the Dove meeting, though several were in complete sympathy. One of these, Sen. George Aiken of Vermont, expressed his private view to Democratic senators that the President was headed for nuclear war with China.

Those attending the closed-door meeting, in addition to the senators mentioned above, included Quentin Burdick, N.D., Frank Moss, Utah, George McGovern, S.D., Ernest Gruening and E. L. Bartlett, both of Alaska, and Joe Clark, Pa.

WAR AGAINST RHODESIA

It may be denied, but the British government has been talking seriously to the State Department about the possibility of using force against the white government of Rhodesia.

This is an unusual step which the Labor Government of Prime Minister Harold Wilson has hoped to avoid. However, economic sanctions against Rhodesia are not working, chiefly because of help from the white government of South Africa. As of today, Prime Minister Ian Smith is stronger than he was before his break with London. The British government meanwhile is under pressure from African members of the Commonwealth to use force to protect the black majority in Rhodesia, now denied the right to participate in government. Prime Minister Wilson will hold off any action until after the elections March 31 and probably deny the matter is even under discussion until after that date.

However, plans for sending an expeditionary force to Rhodesia are definitely under consideration.

sarily the answer. A Cornell University survey indicates that when seat belts were an optional item, 50 per cent of drivers were using them. Now that they are required on all new cars, only 25 per cent of the belts are in use.

One company has even received complaints that its buckles are uncomfortable to sit on.

The much more protective shoulder harness is presently optional on some makes but has met with little customer enthusiasm.

In another aspect of safety, car makers say they have been fighting for years for uniform nationwide vehicle inspection laws and traffic control devices. Some have been sponsoring high school driver education programs.

They point to a serious lack of information on the whys and wherefores of accidents. What percentage is caused by brake or other mechanical failure, for instance?

More data is also needed on the actual value of some items that are currently considered safety equipment but may not turn out to be worth their expense.

About the only hasty conclusion that can be drawn from the mangled traffic situation is that there is no one villain and no one solution. There are no approaches to solutions and finding which ones are best will require the talents and efforts of everyone involved with automobiles and highways--which includes just about everyone.

SEMAFOROS? IMPRUDENT!

There are few traffic lights in Italian cities, the Catholic Digest observes. Bolzano (population 90,000), for instance, has only three.

The manager of a department store overheard a clerk say to a customer, "No we haven't had any for a long time."

Rushing to the scene, the manager assured the customer, "We'll send out and get some." Then, in an aside to the clerk he directed: "Don't ever say we are out of anything. Say we'll get some."

"But," replied the clerk, "we were talking about rain."

GUERRILLA CONGRESS IN HAVANA

Almost entirely ignored by the U.S. press, an extraordinary meeting of communists and their revolutionary allies was held this January in Havana, hosted by Fidel Castro. It was called a Tri-Continental Conference and its purpose was to launch revolutionary guerrilla warfare in no less than 82 countries around the world. Specifically mentioned as priority targets were eight critical nations in Asia, seven in Africa and five in Latin America.

Paul Bethel, editor of Latin America Report, sponsored by the Citizens Committee for a Free Cuba, has called this conference "the largest gathering of guerrillas in one spot in the world's history."

A permanent organization for promoting and directing these world-wide revolutions was established in one spot in Havana by the Tri-Continental Conference. It is intended to serve as a permanent headquarters for guerrilla warfare throughout the world and as a continuing source of arms and money to revolutionaries.

Rarely has there been clearer proof of the enormous value of Castro's Cuba to communist revolutionaries everywhere, and of its enormous danger to us and to our allies.

The self-styled experts who spend so much time looking for "rifts" in the communist world could find little to support their theories in the statements and actions of the Tri-Continental Conference in Havana. Instead, the complete solidarity of all anti-American revolutionaries and terrorists was stressed repeatedly. All agreed that one of the prime goals of their agitation should be to force American withdrawal from Viet Nam.

The Tri-Continental Conference in Havana revealed the true meaning of communist "coexistence." We should not forget it, HLH

Inside Labor

Only Fatheads Would Try to Unionize Professional Ball Players, Says Mr. Labor (George Meany)

New York: -- It just isn't true that George Meany -- Mr. American Labor -- wants to unionize everything. He says, for example, that it's "fat-headed" to talk of organizing professional athletes, baseball players, gridiron men, hoopsters, jockeys, wrestlers, boxers.

Obviously the fathead reference is to labor's push-up, Jimmy Hoffa. Every five years the Ixantam Teamsters revives the ghost of his Professional Sports Division and then lays it low.

Most of the time Mr. Meany simply turns in another direction when the hot wind comes from Hoffa. But this time it cut the husky AFL-CIO prexy to the quick -- and considering the burly frame of my friend Meany, that's a deep cut.

Labor's prexy is a baseball buff. To him Willie Mays of the long-departed Giants is the century's best -- and Meany will tell you that this is a considered opinion after 63 years of watching the boys including Ty Cobb and Tris Speaker.

Meany, convinced that Hoffa is just a publicity seeker trying to get the headlines running in another direction, told a newsmen: "I don't know what kind of a mess baseball and football would be in if they decided to join a union."

So it came as a surprise to us longhairs on this beat to learn that some ball players reversed casting in the past three months.

Usually the talent scouts go hunting ball players. This time three ball players went hunting talent.

And they sure found it -- in the United Steelworkers' Pittsburgh headquarters.

He's Marvin Miller, who pitched a lousy scoutlaw game at James Madison high over in a province called Brooklyn. But this did not mean a thing to the committee of scouts dispatched by the Major League Baseball Assn. On the committee were Jim Bunning, Philadelphia Phillies star hurler; Robin Roberts, now a Houston Astros' coach, and Harvey Kuenn, Chicago Cubs' ace outfielder.

Their Association sought different talent. They had not permanent headquarters. Now they wanted one in New York. They had been doing their own "bargaining" with some ad hoc assists. Now they wanted truly professional guidance.

They wanted a pro to be their executive director. Somebody told them of a man who was just what they sought -- one of the nation's brightest labor minds, a specialist in pensions, security, hospitalization, insurance, and those strange personnel conflicts which might be called "grievances" in any other line of business.

So, when they learned of 48-year-old Marvin Miller, the United Steelworkers' marvel, they telephoned him in December. Phone call followed phone call. Finally they met in Cleveland business office.

Lousy pitcher notwithstanding, he was the man who could work out for them.

For years Marvin Miller, born in the Bronx, raised in Brooklyn, a rookie in Washington, fully professional in Pittsburgh, was part of the tandem team with laborlawyer Arthur Goldberg which truly was the steel union's brain-trust. Officially he was assistant to the union's president and head of the Joint Studies Department.

Few could understand the intricacies of the Supplementary Unemployment Benefit (almost a guaranteed annual wage) system. Miller could. Few could understand the savings-vacation plan. He could.

Few labor men received the respect of the businessmen on the other side as Miller did from the steel industry's mighty erudite and tough bargainers.

When they all wound up in the White House last year, Miller coached off first and third and played the infield all at the same time.

Now in his $50,000-a-year job (still to be ratified by the mighty democratic ball players of 20 National and American league teams) Miller says regardless of a new national headquarters, regardless of being executive director, the Association won't be a union.

"This will obviously differ a lot," says he, "from a trade union situation. This is unique. "Baseball players are in the public eye, more an image than a million steelworkers. They have an unusual position in the land. I think it will be very important to resolve problems with the clubs' owners, etc., in a private and rational manner. There will be no strikes. No strike threats. It can be done."

If things get real rough the showpaw from James Madison high can always call cross-town for a mediator -- his old "partner," Ambassador Arthur Goldberg. But only the umpires will call strikes.

POOR CHARLIE SAYS!

Thursday, March 10, 902 - Jvwlania invaded by a plague of locusts.

One of the things that Secretary of State Dean Rusk was supposed to tell the Senate Foreign Relations committee was whether Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey's pledge of "all necessary assistance" to Southeast Asia countries involves fighting for them.

This is a good example of a Senate committee performing a disservice to the country.

Rusk should not be asked to give such testimony whether it is disclosed to the public or not.

If the testimony were given secretly the information might be expected to leak out. Senators have a reputation for talking. If the Communists learn which countries for which this nation would not be inclined to fight they would be encouraged to conquer them either by subversion or military means.

The United States learned how dangerous this type of talk can be in Korea. The fact that Americans in official life had expressed the opinion that South Korea was not worth defending probably encouraged the Communists to try to take it over. The Korean conflict resulted with United States soldiers fighting to prevent the Communists from conquering the country.

It is wrong to give the Communists a blueprint of what this country will defend by fighting and what it won't. In doing this, the United is playing right into the hands of the enemy.

Sen. J. W. Fulbright, chairman of the committee, has offered a rider to the foreign aid appropriation bill saying that approval cannot be construed as a commitment to defend the benefiting nations with American forces. The rider is all right as far as it goes but it should not serve as an instrument to show the Communists and the world where our troops will fight and more importantly perhaps, where they won't fight.

Humphrey obviously doesn't have the right to go around the world pledging support by American troops and Congress does have a role with the nation's chief executive in a declaration of war.

A delicate domestic balance of power is involved but no good purpose is served by telling our enemies in advance what this country will or will not do.

Private testimony before a Senate committee isn't any better than broadcasting the news to the world if that is the final result anyway.

Esquire Harrison says: "Some people don't have much to say, but you have to listen a long time to find it out."

SOCIETY OF SQUARES

After listening to numerous discussions of the Great Society and the so-called Poverty Program, we have come to the conclusion that the free-loaders have built themselves a political organization while the square-shooters and honest hard-workers seem to be outnumbered because they haven't organized to show their strength.

A preacher friend sent a little essay he wrote that will qualify him for a membership in the Society of Squares. He talks about government.

"What does my government owe me?"
"... Only those freedoms and privileges guaranteed by the Constitution. These do not include a living or a guaranteed income.

"What do I owe my government?... Interest... loyalty... service... defense.

"I also owe my government critical analysis... and the expression of my convictions with the greatest weapon ever placed in the hands of men--the ballot."

For your information, there is no membership fee to join our Society of Squares, but there are qualifications that must be passed, such as: working for a living and the good of the community, paying your taxes and personal bills, no free-loading on the welfare rolls and unemployment compensation "clubs", supporting your church and other institutions as your personal obligation, and getting a lump in your throat whenever Old Glory, the American flag, passes by. No doubt, our readers can name many other things that make a square the square-shooter he is.

We'll be waiting to hear from more qualifying members of the Society of Squares who need to stand up and be counted now--not later.

VOICES OF EXPERIENCE

Many persons and many businesses have profited through the years by listening and adhering to the advice of persons of authority by virtue of long experience. Three such voices spoke out recently in support of the matchless value of newspaper advertising. Down through the years newspapers have preached this truth at the risk of being accused of being bias, but now comes that same truth from three merchandising leaders who are just as biased in support of local newspapers.

Without further comment, which is unnecessary, here are the names of the three and their comments, which were delivered before three separate large groups of business representatives within the scope of their own business:

Carl Uren, assistant advertising director of Chevrolet:

"We regard the newspaper as the most local, retail and urgent of the media we use because newspaper readership is nearly universal; we know that at the same time we are reaching the mass audience, we are reaching the single, mostly likely group of prospects we have--present and satisfied owners."

Orville W. Johler, Vice President for advertising of the Independent Grocers' Alliance: "Nothing excels newspapers when it comes to selling merchandise or building a substantial image for the company. No other media that I know of can give you the cooperation of the dual job of selling merchandise and building a solid image of your store that comes anywhere near the newspapers in the towns you serve."

David L. Yunich, president of Macy's Department store in New York, one of the world's largest retail establishments:

"Retailers must invite; they must attract people to their stores. The most powerful way of doing this is through advertising in strong, interesting and widely read local newspapers. The newspaper is the backbone of the retail advertising structure."

The Colonel said: "As you get along in years you will notice there are many people in this old world who want to run the other fellow's business."

MEDICAL INSURANCE DEADLINE MAR. 31

Medicare's 2 parts -- hospital insurance to help pay costs of hospital care, and medical insurance to help pay doctors' bills--go into effect July 1.

People 65 and over getting social security or railroad retirement monthly benefits will have hospital insurance automatically.

But, medical insurance is voluntary and costs $3 a month. The Government pays an equal amount. People who were 65 by 1966 must enroll by March 31 to have this protection when it begins.

Nearly everyone 65 and over can have medicare protection, even if they never worked under social security, but they must apply. Check with any social security office for information.

The word "vaccination" comes from the Latin word "vacca," meaning cow. The term originally referred only to the injection of cowpox virus into the body to prevent smallpox.

Austin Smith, M.D., writing in Emory University Quarterly, says: "Drugs of the future will be better tolerated by patients and will act with greater specificity. In the field of radiology, new agents will facilitate x-ray diagnostic procedures of the brain. Space medicine research promises to bring a beneficial fall-out of drugs for use in vestibular malfunctions, protection from harmful radiation, and reduction in fatigue. Other exotic areas of research may produce compounds that offer protection from extreme heat, and others from extreme cold. A pill that would repel insects is another possibility. The future of drug research was never brighter. The results will add to man's longevity, and will reduce the discomfort, suffering, and disability of disease."

Heard at the coffee table: "If you don't think things are as bad as they're painted, visit a modern art exhibit."

The 1965 peanut crop is placed at nearly 2 1/2 billion pounds -- 13 percent more than a year earlier, due to a record yield per acre.

OCEAN GOING SUCCESS

STORY
Segments of our merchant marine face a decline even though the American flag now flies over the fastest and finest cargo and passenger liners that sail the seas of the world today. The latter are under rigid government contracts to operate under the U.S. flag regularly, in good times and bad, on foreign trade routes the government designates as essential. Explaining this situation, an official of one of our leading shipping companies has pointed out that we have four distinct mer-

NEW YORK (AP) — There comes a time in the life of every parent when his children cease to regard him as infallible.

This blackest hour of fatherhood is often connected with broken toys.

When the children are young the toys tend to be simple. Even a man who is ham-handed can replace a wheel on a tricycle. His children regard him as a mechanical genius.

Then all of a sudden they're playing with things like electric motor raceways and a father's troubles begin.

Surveying with disgust the parts of a nonworking racer after his father's unavailing efforts over the weekend, the 10-year-old said:

"Daddy, I don't think you understand electricity."

"It's a rather specialized field, Jeffrey. This car will have to go back to the shop for servicing."

"When Michael's Ferrari quit running his father fixed it."

living as an electronics expert. It is not surprising that he could fix Michael's Ferrari."

"Daddy, can you fly an airplane?" asked the 9-year-old.

"No, Nicky, flying airplanes is not among my accomplishments."

"David's uncle can. He owns his own airplane. He took David to Miami."

"We aren't wealthy enough to own an airplane. Besides, I can't stand the heat in Miami."

"Daddy, could you change a tire?"

"I could if we had a jack. I keep forgetting to buy one."

"If we have a flat tire will you have to call a mechanic?"

"As matters stand, yes."

"All right, daddy. Will you help us with our arithmetic?"

"It's the binary system again, isn't it? I'm sorry, but they didn't teach that when I was in school."

"Daddy, are you awfully old?"

"I wasn't when I woke up this morning, but I just aged 10 years."

chant marines, each operating in a different manner, serving a different market and facing different earnings and growth prospects.

The Merchant Marine Act of 1936 recognized the fact that long term American flag liner operation on foreign trade routes would be impossible without government providing a cushion against competition of foreign shipping which has the advantage of lower construction and operating costs. Differential subsidies were provided for one segment of our merchant marine to ensure that the United States would have control of a fast modern fleet of cargo and passenger liners operating on world trade routes deemed essential to this country's economic and military security. This legislation has been successful in achieving its purpose.

But the three other segments of our merchant marine present a different picture. They are the contract and bulk carriers, commonly known as tramp steamers, tankers in international service, and dry cargo ships and tankers engaged in the domestic trade. The Merchant Marine Act was not intended to include these and they have been up against lower cost foreign shipping and in the case of coastwise trade the natural competition of alternative land transport as well. Some extensions of the subsidy program may become necessary as, for example, in the case of routes to our overseas states and territories which should not be left dependent on foreign flag shipping.

But let's recognize that our national maritime policy has been highly successful in the area it was intended to cover. If changes are needed, they should be made as the shipping spokesmen states, "...deliberately, with full knowledge of specific problems and prospects and after realistic assessment of our National desires, objectives, costs and benefits."

CARS ARE SAFER: DRIVING IS NOT

The automobile industry has been the target for an increasing amount of criticism of late. Faced with the ghastly statistic of nearly 50,000 traffic deaths in 1965, it is only human nature to seek an obvious scapegoat to put the blame on.

But while there is no doubt ground for criticism and vast room for improvement, the auto makers have done a creditable job of improving the safety of motor vehicles over the years, if only because of the fortunate fact that safety and salability are not always mutually exclusive.

Highway User magazine gave manufacturers an opportunity to state their case in a recent issue.

Although cars no longer come with heavy, kick-proof fenders, what's underneath is much tougher than it used to be, the makers contend. Broken axles, for example, were once commonplace but are rare today. Aside from increased durability, many other safety improvements have gone virtually unheralded, such as safety rim wheels, interlocking door latches, deep-dish steering wheels, padded dashes.

The latest item on 1966 cars is windshield glass twice as shatter-resistant as the old type. It almost seems as if safety has to be slipped into car design unobtrusively or the public won't accept it. A prime example is the push-button shift located on the driver's side of the dash. People wouldn't buy it, preferring to go on impaling themselves on the conventional lever.

Washington Merry - Go - Round

By Drew Pearson

WASHINGTON -- Publicly President Johnson scored a resounding victory in the Senate debate on Viet Nam. But below the surface, scars are deep. Some of his most vigorous supporters of the Great Society program are bitter.

This was made all too clear at a closed-door meeting of "Dove" senators who had previously signed the resolution proposed by Sen. Vance Hartke, Ind., urging peace in Viet Nam. Criticism of the Democratic president by Democratic senators at this session was vitriolic in the extreme. LBJ was called a "desperate man," a "wild animal" who was taking the country into war with China.

The meeting of Senate "Doves" -- all Democrats -- took place just one day before the Senate was scheduled to vote on the resolution of Sen. Wayne Morse, Ore., to rescind the Bay of Tonkin Resolution which, in the fall of 1964, gave Johnson an overwhelming endorsement for what was then a much smaller and less dangerous Viet Nam war. Though news and TV reporters got wind of the closed-door meeting and interviewed Sen. William Fulbright, Ark., at its termination, Fulbright was very restrained in what he said. He gave no hint of the emotional, vitriolic debate which had taken place inside.

First order of business was to try to persuade Sen. Morse not to proceed with his resolution. Other senators argued that the overwhelming majority of the Senate would line up against him and this would be considered a significant defeat for advocates of peace.

Morse replied that he had made commitments and could not withdraw his resolution. It was then proposed that another, milder resolution be introduced, putting the Senate on record against escalating the war. Such a resolution, it was argued, would not more votes than the more drastic Morse Resolution. Sen. Fulbright was against this strategy, argued that such a resolution would get only 15 or 16 votes and thus would be considered a great Johnson victory.

EMOTIONAL CRITICISM
Sen. Eugene McCarthy of Minnesota argued the other way. He maintained that it was better to get 15 votes than to make no test at all. Fifteen or 16 votes, he said, would be a big increase from the two votes expected for the Morse Resolution and would be a warning to the President. McCarthy got quite worked up over the danger of war.

We've got a wild man in the White House, he said, and we're going to have to treat him as such.

Sen. Albert Gore of Tennessee was also critically emotional. He described the President as a "desperate man who was likely to get us into war with China, and we have got to prevent it. We all like the President, but we've got to stop him!"

Sen. Fulbright, chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, differed with McCarthy, claimed it was better to avoid a showdown which the public could point to as a defeat for the "Doves" and a victory for Johnson.

Bobby Kennedy agreed that the resolution against escalation of the war was desirable but was inclined to side with Fulbright that a showing of only 15 or 16 votes would not particularly impress the public or the President. The Senator from New York was careful to steer clear of any strong language against the President. This was one of the few meetings where the brother of the late president has teamed up with Senate dissenters. Though frequently dissenting in the past, he has been a lone wolf.

Sen. Stephen Young of Ohio supported Gene McCarthy's view that even 15 or 16 votes against the President would be a healthy warning not to let the war get out of hand.

The meeting finally adjourned with no plans for a resolution. But the opposition expressed by these Democratic senators against their Democratic leader in the White House ran deep, and obviously will continue.

No Republicans attended the Dove meeting, though several were in complete sympathy. One of these, Sen. George Aiken of Vermont, expressed his private view to Democratic senators that the President was headed for nuclear war with China.

Those attending the closed-door meeting, in addition to the senators mentioned above, included Quentin Burdick, N.D., Frank Moss, Utah, George McGovern, S.D., Ernest Gruening and E. L. Bartlett, both of Alaska, and Joe Clark, Pa.

WAR AGAINST RHODESIA
It may be denied, but the British government has been talking seriously to the State Department about the possibility of using force against the White government of Rhodesia.

This is an unusual step which the Labor Government of Prime Minister Harold Wilson has hoped to avoid. However, economic sanctions against Rhodesia are not working, chiefly because of help from the white government of South Africa. As of today, Prime Minister Ian Smith is stronger than he was before his break with London.

The British government meanwhile is under pressure from African members of the Commonwealth to use force to protect the black majority in Rhodesia, now denied the right to participate in government. Prime Minister Wilson will hold off any action until after the elections March 31 and probably deny the matter is even under discussion until after that date.

However, plans for sending an expeditionary force to Rhodesia are definitely under consideration.

sarily the answer. A Cornell University survey indicates that when seat belts were an optional item, 50 per cent of drivers were using them. Now that they are required on all new cars, only 25 per cent of the belts are in use.

One company has even received complaints that its buckles are uncomfortable to sit on.

The much more protective shoulder harness is presently optional on some makes but has met with little customer enthusiasm.

In another aspect of safety, car makers say they have been fighting for years for uniform nationwide vehicle inspection laws and traffic control devices. Some have been sponsoring high school driver education programs.

They point to a serious lack of information on the whys and wherefores of accidents. What percentage is caused by brake or other mechanical failure, for instance?

More data is also needed on the actual value of some items that are currently considered safety equipment but may not turn out to be worth their expense.

About the only hasty conclusion that can be drawn from the mangled traffic situation is that there is no one villain and no one solution. There are only approaches to solutions and finding which ones are best will require the talents and efforts of everyone involved with automobiles and highways--which includes just about everyone.

SEMAFOROS? IMPRUDENT!
There are few traffic lights in Italian cities, the Catholic Digest observes. Bolzano (population 90,000), for instance, has only three.

The manager of a department store overheard a clerk say to a customer, "No we haven't had any for a long time."

Rushing to the scene, the manager assured the customer, "We'll send out and get some." Then, in an aside to the clerk he directed: "Don't ever say we are out of anything. Say we'll get some."

"But," replied the clerk, "we were talking about rain."

Doc. Duncan Says

GUERRILLA CONGRESS IN HAVANA

Almost entirely ignored by the U.S. press, an extraordinary meeting of communists and their revolutionary allies was held this January in Havana, hosted by Fidel Castro. It was called a Tri-Continental Conference and its purpose was to launch revolutionary guerrilla warfare in no less than 82 countries around the world. Specifically mentioned as priority targets were eight critical nations in Asia, seven in Africa and five in Latin America.

Paul Bethel, editor of Latin America Report, sponsored by the Citizens Committee for a Free Cuba, has called this conference "the largest gathering of guerrillas in one spot in the world's history."

A permanent organization for promoting and directing these world-wide revolutions was established in one spot in Havana by the Tri-Continental Conference. It is intended to serve as a permanent headquarters for guerrilla warfare throughout the world and as a continuing source of arms and money to revolutionaries.

Rarely has there been clearer proof of the enormous value of Castro's Cuba to communist revolutionaries everywhere, and of its enormous danger to us and to our allies.

The self-styled experts who spend so much time looking for "rifts" in the communist world could find little to support their theories in the statements and actions of the Tri-Continental Conference in Havana. Instead, the complete solidarity of all anti-American revolutionaries and terrorists was stressed repeatedly. All agreed that one of the prime goals of their agitation should be to force American withdrawal from Viet Nam.

The Tri-Continental Conference in Havana revealed the true meaning of communist "coexistence." We should not forget it. HLH

Inside Labor

Only Fatheads Would Try to Unionize Professional Ball Players, Says Mr. Labor (George Meany)

New York: -- It just isn't true that George Meany -- Mr. American Labor -- wants to unionize everything. He says, for example, that it's "fat-headed" to talk of organizing professional athletes, baseball players, gridiron men, hoopsters, jockeys, wrestlers, boxers.

Obviously the fathead reference is to labor's push-up, Jimmy Hoffa. Every five years the bantam Teamsters revives the ghost of his Professional Sports Division and then lays it low.

Most of the time Mr. Meany simply turns in another direction when the hot wind comes from Hoffa. But this time it cut the husky AFL-CIO prexy to the quick -- and considering the burly frame of my friend Meany, that's a deep cut.

Labor's prexy is a baseball buff. To him Willie Mays of the long-departed Giants is the century's best -- and Meany will tell you that this is a considered opinion after 63 years of watching the boys including Ty Cobb and Tris Speaker.

Meany, convinced that Hoffa is just a publicity seeker trying to get the headlines running in another direction, told a kind of a mess baseball and football would be in if they decided to join a union.

So it came as a surprise to us longhairs on this beat to learn that some ball players reversed casting in the past three months.

Usually the talent scouts go hunting ball players. This time three ball players went hunting talent.

And they sure found it -- in the United Steelworkers' Pittsburgh headquarters.

He's Marvin Miller, who pitched a lousy showup game at James Madison High over in a province called Brooklyn. But this did not mean a thing to the committee of scouts dispatched by the Major League Baseball Assn. On the committee were Jim Bunning, Philadelphia Phillies star hurler; Robin Roberts, now a Houston Astros' coach, and Harvey Kuenn, Chicago Cubs' ace outfielder.

Their Association sought different talent. They had no permanent headquarters. Now they wanted one in New York. They had been doing their own "bargaining" with some ad hoc assists. Now they wanted truly professional guidance.

They wanted a pro to be their executive director. Somebody told them of a man who was just what they sought -- one of the nation's brightest labor minds, a specialist in pensions, security, hospitalization, insurance, and those strange personnel conflicts which might be called "grievances" in any other line of business.

So, when they learned of 48-year-old Marvin Miller, the United Steelworkers' marvel, they telephoned him in December. Phone call followed phone call. Finally they met in a Cleveland business office.

Lousy pitcher notwithstanding, he was the man who could work out for them.

For years Marvin Miller, born in the Bronx, raised in Brooklyn, a rookie in Washington, fully professional in Pittsburgh, was part of the tandem team with labor lawyer Arthur Goldberg which truly was the steel union's brain-trust. Officially he was assistant to the union's president and head of the Joint Studies Department.

Few could understand the intricacies of the Supplementary Unemployment Benefit (almost a guaranteed annual wage) system. Miller could. Few could understand the savings-vacation plan. He could.

Few labor men received the respect of the businessmen on the other side as Miller did from the steel industry's mighty erudite and tough bargainers.

When they all wound up in the White House last year, Miller coached off first and third and played the infield all at the same time.

Now in his $50,000-a-year job (still to be ratified by the mighty democratic ball players of 20 National and American league teams) Miller says regardless of a new national headquarters, regardless of being executive director, the Association won't be a union.

"This will obviously differ a lot," says he, "from a trade union situation. This is unique."

"Baseball players are in the public eye, more an image than a million steelworkers. They have an unusual position in the land. I think it will be very important to resolve problems with the clubs' owners, etc., in a private and rational manner. There will be no strikes. No strike threats. It can be done."

If things get real rough, the showup from James Madison High can always call cross-town for a mediator -- his old "partner", Ambassador Arthur Goldberg. But only the umpires will call strikes.

Catholic Women Elect Officers

The Sikeston Deane County Council of Catholic Women met Sunday afternoon at the St. Francis Xavier School Hall.

Election and installation of officers for the coming year were held. The new officers are president, Mrs. Norman Kay, Chaffee; vice president, Mrs. A. C. Opperman, Fredricktown; recording secretary, Mrs. Oliver Dumay, Sikeston; treasurer, Mrs. Gertrude Rowling, Charleston; auditor, Mrs. W. M. Rogers, Kelso; and director at large, Mrs. Robert McEwing, Scott City. The spring convention will be held April 19 in St. Peter's Parish at Joplin. Seventy persons attended the meeting Sunday.

Mrs. Tropft is Hostess to Extension Club

The McMullin Extension Club met Thursday with Mrs. James Tropft. Mrs. Heartsill Daniel conducted the meeting.

Roll call was answered by each member giving her favorite material for spring. Mrs. Edward Roberts read a poem, "A Tribute to George," for the devotion.

The lesson was given by Mrs. Barbara LaCroix on "Clothing To Fit the Occasion and Accessories." There were 15 members present.

The hostesses, Mrs. James Tropft and Mrs. Larry Harshbarger, served cherry pie and sodas.

The next meeting will be with Mrs. John Hodges on April 7.

Nearly a half-million cars were stolen in the United States during 1964.

Pork Prices Begin Fall

NEW YORK AP -- The leprechauns who have been playing with food bills danced a jig this week.

Housewives' resistance to higher prices for pork finally made itself felt.

Prices for live hogs at Midwestern markets fell to the lowest level since last November. And pork bellies, the raw material for bacon, also were down.

Butter prices are up 1 cent a pound, eggs 1 cent a dozen and fryers 3 cents a pound.

The dairy product situation is likely to get worse. Milk, butter and cheese already are in short supply, with prices increasing. And the U.S. Agriculture Department reports milk production is likely to drop even further this year.

But potato prices are far below a year ago.

More spring greens are moving to the markets -- lettuce, cabbage, parsley, green peppers, endive, celery, dandelions, turnip mustard greens, collards, artichokes, avocados.

Prices are up on frozen asparagus, brussels sprouts and lima beans, along with catsup, tomato juice, puree, chile sauce and other tomato products.

Canned asparagus, limas, corn, spinach, cherries and cling peaches are in short supply.

Community Club Has Meeting

MATTHEWS -- The Feb. 23 meeting of the Matthews Community Club was opened with representatives of the four Girl Scout troops presenting to the Community Club vice president Mrs. Robert Burch.

It was in the form of a framed promissory note to have a flag pole erected at the Community Center, Girl Scouts Carla Jo Romines, Linda Bird, Debbie Warren, and Linda Greene made the presentation. The pledge was signed by Girl Scout Leaders Gwen Cain, Doris Koch, Lena Warren, Helen Greene, Ginger Beck, Clodine Trail, and Nola Jones.

The meeting was opened with unison reading of the club collect. Mrs. Carl Romines, club treasurer, was appointed chairman of the Fall Festival Committee. Mrs. Romines gave a report on the final settlement of last year's festival. She also reported that the building was rented six times during the holidays. A committee was appointed to investigate the cost of paint for the interior of the building.

Mrs. Robert Burch was appointed chairman of the fourth annual Easter Parade for the tiny tots with March 31 being set as the tentative date.

A report was given on the March of Dimes fund drive made on Jan. 31. The club voted to give $5 to the Cancer Fund.

A most interesting and informative lesson on "New Textiles - Use and Care" was presented by Mrs. Burch and Mrs. George Proffer. Members were given mimeographed material concerning new fabrics to use as reference.

Mrs. D. K. Lape was welcomed as a new member. A dessert course was served by hostesses Mrs. Troy Tippett, Mrs. William Deproy, and Mrs. Herschel Yates.

Pork Prices Begin Fall

NEW YORK AP -- The leprechauns who have been playing with food bills danced a jig this week.

Housewives' resistance to higher prices for pork finally made itself felt.

Prices for live hogs at Midwestern markets fell to the lowest level since last November. And pork bellies, the raw material for bacon, also were down.

Butter prices are up 1 cent a pound, eggs 1 cent a dozen and fryers 3 cents a pound.

The dairy product situation is likely to get worse. Milk, butter and cheese already are in short supply, with prices increasing. And the U.S. Agriculture Department reports milk production is likely to drop even further this year.

But potato prices are far below a year ago.

More spring greens are moving to the markets -- lettuce, cabbage, parsley, green peppers, endive, celery, dandelions, turnip mustard greens, collards, artichokes, avocados.

Prices are up on frozen asparagus, brussels sprouts and lima beans, along with catsup, tomato juice, puree, chile sauce and other tomato products.

Canned asparagus, limas, corn, spinach, cherries and cling peaches are in short supply.

Community Club Has Meeting

MATTHEWS -- The Feb. 23 meeting of the Matthews Community Club was opened with representatives of the four Girl Scout troops presenting to the Community Club vice president Mrs. Robert Burch, a pledge of service. It was in the form of a framed promissory note to have a flag pole erected at the Community Center. Girl Scouts Carla Jo Romines, Linda Bird, Debbie Warren, and Linda Greene made the presentation. The pledge was signed by Girl Scout Leaders Gwen Cain, Doris Koch, Lena Warren, Helen Greene, Ginger Beck, Clodine Trail, and Nola Jones.

The meeting was opened with unison reading of the club collect. Mrs. Carl Romines, club treasurer, was appointed chairman of the Fall Festival Committee. Mrs. Romines gave a report on the final settlement of last year's festival. She also reported that the building was rented six times during the holidays. A committee was appointed to investigate the cost of paint for the interior of the building.

Mrs. Robert Burch was appointed chairman of the fourth annual Easter Parade for the tiny tots with March 31 being set as the tentative date.

A report was given on the March of Dimes fund drive made on Jan. 31. The club voted to give $5 to the Cancer Fund.

A most interesting and informative lesson on "New Textiles - Use and Care" was presented by Mrs. Burch and Mrs. George Proffier. Members were given mimeographed material concerning new fabrics to use as reference.

Mrs. D. K. Lape was welcomed as a new member. A dessert course was served by hostesses Mrs. Troy Tippet, Mrs. William Depro, and Mrs. Herschel Yates.

Bloomfield Dominates Stoddard County All-Conference Teams

Bloomfield dominated the Stoddard county all-star team this year placing two players on the first team and two on the second. Mike Wise and Don Underwood are the Wildcat stars on the first team and Phil Johnson and Andy Bullinger made the second team. Other players on the first team are Wayne Early of Richland, Bill Morgan of Advance, and Ralph Corse of Puxico.

Mike Wise was the top vote getter, as he was the only unanimous choice to the first team.

Stoddard county the toughest county in basketball in Southeast Missouri each year has brought nine All-State basketball players to the district in the past three years, and will have another fine year this year.

Rounding out the second team is Art Norris of Puxico, Rich Hahs of Woodland, and Fred Tanner of Bernie.

MIKE WISE -- Perhaps the top ball player in Southeast Missouri, Mike led his team to fourth place in the state class M tournament and to first place in the Bernie Invitational tournament, Bloomfield Christmas tournament and to first in the class M regional at Bloomfield. Mike, top scoring center for the Wildcats who stands 6'3" tall is perhaps the toughest rebounder in the district, as he averaged 16 rebounds a game and 21 points per game the past season.

WAYNE EARLY -- A very versatile ball player with quite a bit of ability, played on a fine team and led his team in every department. Wayne played on state runners-up team two years ago, and one of the top players in the district for the past three years. Wayne led his team in rebounding and shooting for the past two years and will make a fine college player.

BILL MORGAN -- The only junior on the first team, Bill is a fine young athlete and will be one of the district top players next year. Bill who is following in his brother Ben's footsteps who was one of the top players three years ago and made All-State. Bill was the floor leader for the Hornets the past season. Bill led his team in scoring and came in second in rebounding.

RALPH CORSE -- A fine left handed shooter who can hit the 30 foot shot with great accuracy, led his team in scoring the past season with a 20 point plus average. A great jumper and rebounder Ralph will make a fine college player as his desire and hustle is a great asset to his ability.

DON UNDERWOOD -- The man who made the Wildcat press so effective the past season and was one of the top rebounders is the tiger on the first team as he never lets up on hustle and team spirit. Don can do anything on the basketball floor, and has worked hard to make the Wildcats a winning team. Don is the type of boy that any coach would be glad to have on his team as he is a fast learner.

Don averaged around 15 points per game mark and this year led his team in assist and steals. A fine young athlete who will make some college team a fine lead man on the press and a great team worker.

Dexter Falls NAlA Tournament To Out Of State Quarter final Round

By BOB GREENE
Associated Press Writer
KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — Four big battles take place tonight in the quarterfinal round of the National Association of Intercollegiate Athletics (NAIA) basketball tournament.

The feature contests will likely be Rockhurst, Mo., versus Grambling, La., a battle of former tournament champions, and defending champion Central State of Ohio versus Norfolk, Va., State.

Illinois Wesleyan plays Georgia Southern and Oklahoma Baptist meets Carson - Newman, Tenn., in the other game.

Top-seeded Central State had to come from behind twice to defeat unseeded Lakeland, Wis., Wednesday night, 72-68. Lakeland led at halftime 37-35, and after trailing as many as nine points midway in the final half, came up to grab a 66-65 lead with 4:20 remaining. Two field goals by Kenny Wilburn and a free throw by Don Rather pulled out the victory for Central.

Norfolk State had an easier time, but also had to come from behind. Athens, Ala., jumped off to a 13-point lead early in the game, but Norfolk, led by Essex Thompson, roared back with deadly shooting and deomina-tion of the backboards to win 103-81.

Al Payne moved into the post and scored 33 points to lead Rockhurst to a 98-87 victory over Albuquerque, N. M. Payne received 25-point help from regular center Pat Caldwell.

Grambling outshot a cold Carroll, Mont., College team for a 95-86 victory. The tall Tigers from Louisiana hit 42 of 71 from the field for 59.2 per cent. Carroll was 33 of 85 for 38.8 per cent.

Georgia Southern, fourth-seeded, breezed to an 80-62 victory over Southern State of Arkansas. The Eagles were never headed as Jim Seeley led with 18 points.

Led by Al Tucker's 36 points, Oklahoma Baptist upset sixth-seeded Central Michigan 90-70. Carson - Newman broke the century mark, rolling over Morris Harvey, W. Va., 103-74, behind Jim Shuler's 36 points.

Illinois Wesleyan also was an upset winner, topping fifth-seeded Midwestern, Tex., 96-82.

Today's schedule:
5:15 p.m.—Grambling, La., vs. Rockhurst, Mo.
7 p.m.—Oklahoma Baptist vs. Carson-Newman, Tenn.

8:45 p.m.—Central, Ohio, State vs. Norfolk, Va. State.
10:30 p.m.—Illinois Wesleyan vs. Georgia Southern.

Photographed in Kentucky at the Old Taylor Distillery

Why did Colonel Taylor make his Bourbon in a castle?

In 1887, Col. Edmund H. Taylor, Jr., set out to find a special kind of water to make Bourbon with: limestone spring water.

This water has an incredibly tantalizing flavor that it acquires naturally by bubbling up through the limestone groundrock.

He found a spring near Frankfort, Kentucky. The water here ran forth so pure, so plentiful that he knew he would never want to make Bourbon anywhere else. So, next to his spring, he built his distillery. And since he was there to stay, he built it to last. Built it in the form of a castle made of the same limestone that was to give his water its intriguing flavor.

Does the Colonel's castle make a better Bourbon?

Buy a bottle of Old Taylor...and taste for yourself.

Everything's old fashioned about Old Taylor except the people who drink it.

Baseball Suit Continues In Milwaukee

By HARRY CHANDLER
MILWAUKEE (AP) — The prosecution in Wisconsin's anti-trust suit against baseball is picturing National League club owners as skeptics who summarily rejected a proposal that would have given Milwaukee an expansion club in 1966 to replace the departing Braves.

The state apparently was seeking to use the flat rejection to support its accusation that National League members conspired to boycott Milwaukee as a major league city.

The abortive attempt of Milwaukee Brewers Inc., in December 1965, to obtain an expansion franchise in the senior circuit was described Wednesday by Allan H. (Bud) Selig, president of the organization.

Selig, facing additional cross-examination today, testified that the owners, meeting in Miami Beach, tossed cold water on the plans of a syndicate of wealthy Wisconsin industrialists, backed by $4.3 million in cash commitments, to fill the void left by the exodus of the Braves to Atlanta.

In the current suit before Circuit Judge Elmer W. Roller, Wisconsin contends that the National League is guilty of monopolistic practices in permitting the Braves to move and refusing to grant Milwaukee an expansion franchise.

The owners challenged the Milwaukee group's estimates of an anticipated minimum attendance of 880,000 at County Stadium in 1966, Selig said. They cast doubt also on proposed capitalization of $1.5 million, and questioned whether other expected resources, including a bank loan commitment of $1.5 million and promised loans from two concession firms — Sports Service and ABC Ventures — would be adequate.

Moreover, said Selig, Walter O'Malley of the Los Angeles Dodgers said he (O'Malley) "personally wasn't in favor of granting the application" unless what O'Malley described as the "political situation" in Milwaukee had improved.

The Dodger owner was quoted further as saying that the Milwaukee group "would be doing the right thing by withdrawing the franchise application, take a year to study the operation of other clubs, then resubmit the application the latter part of (next) September."

Under cross-examination by Atty. Earl Jinkinson, Chicago, Selig said he and seven other Milwaukee businessmen made overtures late in 1964 to Braves' Board Chairman William Bartholomay relative to possible purchase of the club. Jinkinson brought out that no "firm offer" ever had been made.

Hawks Fall To 76ers

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
The Los Angeles Lakers have won their second straight Western Division championship in the National Basketball Association and their fourth in five years.

Only a second-place finish to San Francisco in 1964 and a similar runner-up position to St. Louis in 1960 has prevented a streak of six straight Western titles for the Lakers.

The Lakers wrapped up 1966 Western Division laurels by edging the Cincinnati Royals 119-116 Wednesday night in a nip-and-tuck game at Indianapolis. Four free throws, two each by Elgin Baylor and LeRoy Ellis, sewed it up for the Lakers after the Royals had pulled to within 115-114 with 90 seconds left.

The victory gave the Lakers a wonlost record of 42-33. Thus they can lose all five of their remaining games and still finish ahead of the runner-up Baltimore Bullets.

The Bullets got whipped by San Francisco at Seattle 125-115 and now have lost seven more games than the Lakers.

Meantime, the Philadelphia 76ers increased their Eastern Division lead over the champion Boston Celtics to one full game with a 123-115 home triumph over the St. Louis Hawks. Both the 76ers and Celtics have five games left.

The veteran duo of Jerry West and Baylor paced the Lakerers over the Royals. West hit for 31 points and Baylor 27 to offset a 39-point effort by Oscar Robertson for Cincinnati.

Philadelphia made it six straight victories as Wilt Chamberlain and Hal Greer each got 31 points against the Hawks. Big Wilt also grabbed 36 rebounds.

MILWAUKEE AP -- Milwaukee County Stadium, home of the Braves for the past 13 seasons, will be ready for major league baseball April 12, Braves or no Braves.

The Braves abandoned Milwaukee for Atlanta after last season.

Heavyweight Fight Runs Into Another Wall

By PHILIP WECHSLER
ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP) — A dramatic midnight announcement by Ernie Terrell in a police station has once again put the Terrell-Cassius Clay world heavyweight championship fight in the doubtful category. Will it or will it not be held in Toronto March 29?

"As of now the fight is off," Terrell said in rejecting the terms of the new contract sent him by the Maple Leaf Gardens in Toronto where the fight apparently had found a home. It had been turned down in New York, Chicago, Pittsburgh, Louisville, Montreal, the state of Vermont and Verdun, Quebec.

Terrell, the World Boxing Association champion, balked at the provisions in the contract which he said would make him controlled by the Maple Leaf Gardens and commit him to a return bout with George Chuvalo, the Canadian champion, in June.

"If they would send a contract with me just fighting Clay and no other clauses, then I would fight Clay tonight and for thirty cents," Terrell said in the city room of the Atlantic City Press where he dictated a statement late Wednesday night.

He made his "the fight is off" statement later from the police station in nearby Ventnor, N.J., where he had gone to avoid telephone calls.

"This new contract makes it impossible for me to go through with the fight on these terms," Terrell said. "In the original agreement I had a guarantee of $50,000 from the live gate and $100,000 from the ancillary rights on closed-circuit television, and $12,500 was to be paid for training expenses."

"In this new contract there is no guarantee and I haven't received any expenses. And Maple Leaf Gardens wants me to sign a contract where I would have to fight George Chuvalo two months later for the Gardens in Toronto with the Gardens choosing the ancillary or closed-circuit promoters."

Terrell outpointed Chuvalo in a 15-round Nov. 1 in Toronto's Maple Leaf Gardens. "Why should I fight him again?" asked Terrell, adding, "I'm not against fighting Chuvalo, but I want it on my terms."

Harold Ballard, executive vice president of Maple Leaf Gardens, said in Toronto that there would be no fight unless the winner agrees to meet Chuvalo.

"I'm not signing anything until Clay and Terrell agree to the terms, including a defense against Chuvalo in June," Ballard said. "If they don't agree, there's no fight here March 29."

"Tough. That's just too bad," Terrell commented.

"I didn't give the power of attorney to anyone," he added.

Bloomfield Dominates Stoddard County All-Conference Teams

Bloomfield dominated the Stoddard county all-star team this year placing two players on the first team and two on the second. Mike Wise and Don Underwood are the Wildcat stars on the first team and Phil Johnson and Andy Bullinger made the second team. Other players on the first team are Wayne Early of Richland, Bill Morgan of Advance, and Ralph Corse of Puxico.

Mike Wise was the top vote getter, as he was the only unanimous choice to the first team.

Stoddard county the toughest county in basketball in Southeast Missouri each year has brought nine All-State basketball players to the district in the past three years, and will have another fine year this year.

Rounding out the second team is Art Norris of Puxico, Rich Hahs of Woodland, and Fred Tanner of Bernie.

MIKE WISE - Perhaps the top ball player in Southeast Missouri, Mike led his team to fourth place in the state class M tournament and to first place in the Bernie Invitational tournament, Bloomfield Christmas tournament, and to first in the class M regional at Bloomfield. Mike, top scoring center for the Wildcats who stands 6'3" tall is perhaps the toughest rebounder in the district, as he averaged 16 rebounds a game and 21 points per game the past season.

WAYNE EARLY - A very versatile ball player with quite a bit of ability, played on a fine team and led his team in every department. Wayne played on state runners-up team two years ago, and one of the top players in the district for the past three years. Wayne led his team in rebounding and shooting for the past two years and will make a fine college player.

BILL MORGAN - The only junior on the first team, Bill is a fine young athlete and will be one of the districts top players next year. Bill who is following in his brother Ben's footsteps who was one of the top players three years ago and made All-State. Bill was the floor leader for the Hornets the past season. Bill led his team in scoring and came in second in rebounding.

RALPH CORSE - A fine left handed shooter who can hit the 30 foot shot with great accuracy, led his team in scoring the past season with a 20 point plus average. A great jumper and fine rebounder Ralph will make a fine college player as his desire and hustle is a great asset to his ability.

DON UNDERWOOD - The man who made the Wildcat press so effective the past season and was one of the top rebounders is the tiger on the first team as he never lets up on hustle and team spirit. Don can do anything on the basketball floor, and has worked hard to make the Wildcats a winning team. Don is the type of boy that any coach would be glad to have on his team as he is a fast learner.

Don averaged around 15 points per game mark and this year led his team in assist and steals. A fine young athlete who will make some college team a fine lead man on the press and a great team worker.

Maury Wills never has hit 60 homers, knocked in 170 runs or batted .393. Nevertheless, he's reached Babe Ruth's class.

General Manager Buzzie Bavasi of the Los Angeles Dodgers confirmed Wills' status Wednesday in discussing the salary the flashy shortstop will receive this season.

Asked how much he offered Wills, Bavasi replied: "I can't tell you, but it'll be as much as Babe Ruth ever got."

Ruth's top salary with the New York Yankees was said to be $80,000.

Wills, however, wasn't on hand to hear about his step up in class. He hadn't reported to the Dodgers' spring training camp at Vero Beach, Fla., following his return earlier this week from Japan where he toured with his night club act.

In Los Angeles, however, Wills was quick to decline a step up to the class of teammates Sandy Koufax and Don Drysdale, the dynamic duo who are holding out for matching of three-year, $500,000 contracts.

Wills didn't say how much he thought he is worth, but at one time he said he would seek $100,000.

The Dodger captain, incidentally, never has hit more than six homers in one season, knocked in more than 48 runs and batted higher than .302. He has, however, stolen 104 bases in one season.

Ruth never stole more than 17.

Baseball Suit Continues In Milwaukee

By HARRY CHANDLER

MILWAUKEE (AP) - The prosecution in Wisconsin's anti-trust suit against baseball is picturing National League club owners as skeptics who summarily rejected a proposal that would have given Milwaukee an expansion club in 1966 to replace the departing Braves.

The state apparently was seeking to use the flat rejection to support its accusation that National League members conspired to boycott Milwaukee as a major league city.

The abortive attempt of Milwaukee Brewers Inc., in December 1965, to obtain an expansion franchise in the senior circuit was described Wednesday by Allan H. (Bud) Selig, president of the organization.

Selig, facing additional cross-examination today, testified that the owners, meeting in Miami Beach, tossed cold water on the plans of a syndicate of wealthy Wisconsin industrialists, backed by $4.3 million in cash commitments, to fill the void left by the exodus of the Braves to Atlanta.

In the current suit before Circuit Judge Elmer W. Roller, Wisconsin contends that the National League is guilty of monopolistic practices in permitting the Braves to move and refusing to grant Milwaukee an expansion franchise.

The owners challenged the Milwaukee group's estimates of an anticipated minimum attendance of 880,000 at County Stadium in 1966, Selig said. They cast doubt also on proposed capitalization of $1.5 million, and questioned whether other expected resources, including a bank loan commitment of $1.5 million and promised loans from two concession firms - Sports Service and ABC Vending - would be adequate.

Moreover, said Selig, Walter O'Malley of the Los Angeles Dodgers said he (O'Malley) "personally wasn't in favor of granting the application" unless what O'Malley described as the "political situation" in Milwaukee had improved.

The Dodger owner was quoted further as saying that the Milwaukee group "would be doing the right thing by withdrawing the franchise application, take a year to study the operation of other clubs, then resubmit the application the latter part of (next) September."

Under cross-examination by Atty. Earl Jinkins, Chicago, Selig said he and seven other Milwaukee businessmen made overtures late in 1964 to Braves' Board Chairman William Bartholomew relative to possible purchase of the club. Jinkins brought out that no "firm offer" ever had been made.

ST. LOUIS AP -- Two St. Louis teams, one from Kansas City and Springfield Parkview, the defending champion, will battle it out Friday night in the semifinals of the Missouri Class L High School Basketball Tournament.

Springfield won its way to the semis Wednesday night by defeating Mexico 64-62 in a quarter-final at Jefferson City.

In St. Louis, Augustinian defeated Dexter 57-51 and Lindbergh edged Sumner 54-53.

At Kansas City, Central won 76-67 over William Chrisman.

The first semifinal game in Kiel Auditorium Friday night pits Augustinian against Kansas City Central at 7 o'clock.

In the second game at 8:30 p.m., Springfield Parkview meets Lindbergh. Winners meet for the championship Saturday.

Springfield, unbeaten in 49 games, 26 of them this season, led all the way against Mexico, Ray Snelling's 22 points led Springfield.

Ed Tabash of Augustinian had his second straight 30-point tournament game as he helped his team to a 21-10 record.

Lindbergh takes a 21-5 record into the semifinals. Ray Lavender, 7-foot center, scored 15 points for Lindbergh. Sumner led one time early in the final period at 43-42.

Central survived a second-half rally by William Chrisman for its one-point victory.

NAIA Tournament To Quarter final Round

Associated Press Writer KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) - Four big battles take place tonight in the quarterfinal round of the National Association of Intercollegiate Athletics (NAIA) basketball tournament.

The feature contests will likely be Rockhurst, Mo., versus Grambling, La., a battle of former tournament champions, and defending champion Central State of Ohio versus Norfolk, Va., State.

Illinois Wesleyan plays Georgia Southern and Oklahoma Baptist meets Carson-Newman, Tenn., in the other game.

Top-seeded Central State had to come from behind twice to defeat unseeded Lakeland, Wis., Wednesday night, 72-68. Lakeland led at halftime 37-35, and after trailing as many as nine points midway in the final half, came up to grab a 66-65 lead with 4:20 remaining. Two field goals by Kenny Wilburn and a free throw by Don Rather pulled out the victory for Central.

Norfolk State had an easier time, but also had to come from behind. Athens, Ala., jumped off to a 13-point lead early in the game, but Norfolk, led by Essex Thompson, roared back with deadly shooting and deomina-

Why did Colonel Taylor make his Bourbon in a castle?

In 1887, Col. Edmund H. Taylor, Jr., set out to find a special kind of water to make Bourbon with: limestone spring water.

This water has an incredibly tantalizing flavor that it acquires naturally by bubbling up through the limestone groundrock.

He found a spring near Frankfort, Kentucky. The water here ran forth so pure, so plentiful that he knew he would never want to make Bourbon anywhere else.

So, next to his spring, he built his distillery. And since he was there to stay, he built it to last. Built it in the form of a castle made of the same limestone that was to give his water its intriguing flavor.

Does the Colonel's castle make a better Bourbon?

Buy a bottle of Old Taylor...and taste for yourself.

Everything's old fashioned about Old Taylor except the people who drink it.

ABOUT OUR SCHOOLS

by LYNN TWITTY

We appreciate the co-operation of the Tanner Street Church of God Board, in allowing us to use their education building classrooms to begin the Head Start Program which will get underway sometime this week. We will move the classes from the Tanner Street Church of God location to Southwest School after our regular school session ends in the spring. The Southwest School is air conditioned and was the location of last summer's Head Start Program.

Not only have we received excellent co-operation from the Tanner Street Church but several other churches offered the use of their facilities for this purpose. We are keenly appreciative of the support and co-operation which we get from Sikeston Ministerial Alliance and the supporting churches, in helping us to achieve some of our educational aims.

This year's Head Start will enroll approximately 240 children with a priority given to those who will be first graders next year. A majority of these must come from low-income families but enrollment is not restricted to this group.

The purpose of Head Start is to provide educational experiences that will enable them to compete with more fortunate children when they begin school. Our experiences in last summer's Head Start Program was that it was one of the most successful of the Federally sponsored program which we have operated. Our teachers are almost solid in their opinion that the children who attended Head Start last summer, have been helped in that they were more eager and willing to learn when school started this year. We are giving some tests and keeping some records which we think will prove this point.

One director or co-ordinator is to be employed. There will be twelve teacher aids, two secretaries, one nurse, one psychologist, and the necessary custodial employees. The children will be furnished a hot noonday lunch and transportation will be provided. Those wishing additional details about Head Start may talk to Bob Miller, Director of Elementary Education.

School will be dismissed on March 17-18 in order that all faculty members may attend the annual Southeast Missouri District Teacher's Association meeting which will be held in Cape Girardeau. This might be a good time for parents to schedule medical or dental appointments, to plan a brief family trip, etc.

According to Senior High Principal Roger Sherman's report, first semester grades there, omitting physical education and music, were as follows: There were 439 A's; 1741 B's; 2525 C's; 1019 were in the D category and 100 students received failing grades.

It is difficult to make definite conclusions regarding the distribution of grades, or for that matter, any exact comparison between students. The reason being that no two teachers grade exactly alike, even though we try to maintain as nearly the same standards as possible, and because students vary so much as individuals. We believe that most of our teachers are fairly realistic when it comes to grading students, that is the student makes his own grade, and gets just about what he deserves. This distribution of grades as reported by Principal Sherman, would indicate that most of our students are doing better than average work. We hope that it presents a true picture and naturally we would like to see all of the F and D grades in the C and above category. But we doubt the students have changed that much since we were in school.

The school year, is nearing its final phase, just as "time marches on" and we must begin thinking in terms of end-of-school activities. To list a few: Open House for parents and friends, Baccalaureate, Commencement, and a considerable number of other social and educational activities that are important to, and for, students. Open House dates are as follows: Senior High School, Friday, May 13; Matthews School, May 17; Southwest and Lincoln, May 18; Airport and Lee Hunter, May 19; and Middle School, May 20.

Baccalaureate services are scheduled for Sunday, May 22 and school will close with commencement Friday, May 27.

Our area Trade-Technical Institute has attracted considerable attention from other school officials throughout the Midwest. We have had visitors, including Superintendents, Vocational Educators, Principals, and Board Members from Eldon, Chillicothe, Poplar Bluff, Fox-Arnold and Columbia, Missouri and from a number of school officials from around Benton, Illinois. Other Missouri school officials scheduling visits in the near future are from Neosho and Lebanon. Most of these visitors are either operating area schools or plan their formation. They observe our operation to get ideas to assist them or perhaps to profit from some of our mistakes.

Most of these visitors are referred to us by the State Department of Education.

There is a vast difference in the ability of school districts to finance an educational program on the basis of the taxable valuation per child or the ratio between total enrollment and total assessed valuation of the school district.

The important thing in providing quality education, or the lack thereof, is the amount of dollars per child. These dollars pay for the many necessary items and services required to operate a school. Usually, in fact almost always, the best schools exist where the per pupil expenditure is highest. The only source of school funds over which local school districts have control in Missouri is the current tax levy voted on the districts assessed valuation. The valuation per child varies widely. For example, a $1 tax levy will raise the following amounts per child in these school districts: Cape Girardeau, $56.07; Dexter, $47.36; Jackson $67.26; Matthews, $91.08; Poplar Bluff, $40.87; Scott Central, $52.77; and in Sikeston the valuation per child is only sufficient to produce $42.07 per child on the basis of a $1 levy. Of these schools only Poplar Bluff has a lower per pupil valuation. To further illustrate this difference Clayton, Missouri can raise $353.44 per pupil with a $1 levy and Ladue, also in St. Louis county, gets $223.12 per pupil for each $1 tax levy. This pretty well proves that equality of educational opportunity is somewhat of a myth.

We are encouraged that elementary students continue to increase their reading proficiency. For example, a total of 3,414 books were read by the 370 Matthews School students during a recent four week

It's hot here. I expected that, but I wasn't prepared for it. The Army is lenient here regarding the uniforms, and allowing the soldier to dress for comfort rather than on spit and polish style. Everyone took immediate advantage of this and peeled off their shirts. Now, one week later, am much wiser though sunburned group of men resemble Arabs as they hang handkerchiefs, towels, and even T-shirts from the back of their hats to help ward off the relentless sun. We have also put our shirts back on, with the sleeves rolled all the way down to protect our arms.

The air base here is a center period. Other of our schools report equal interest in reading on the part of their children.

of activity. All day long the helicopters take off and queue up in massive groups as they leave on an assault mission. The heavy roar of their engines, and the popping of the rotor blades send shock waves to the ground, and we tingle slightly as we look up at them and return a door gunner's casual wave. Truthfully, there is more than the vibrations making us tingle. There is also a strong sense of pride; and we are all anxious to be declared operational, so that we may join them. We will get our orientation rides soon, then we can go too.

I can't say where we are, but the area is secured only by the strength of our perimeter defense. Every one hundred yards around the Airfield, there is a bunker. There is concertina (barbed wire), and a mine field. Beyond this is Charlie. In American G. I. idiom, the V. C. are called Charlie, from the phonetic alphabet "Victor Charlie" for V. C. or, Charlie for short.

At night there is a steady exchange of fire between our Perimeter Guards and Charlie. We can sit in front of our tents and watch the tracers lacing through the dark night, and hear the sharp reports of the rifles and machine guns.

No one worries much about the small arms from that far away, but if we hear a whang and a whoosh, we dive for our sand bag barricades and wish we could turn into an insect, so that we could better avoid the deadly crump of incoming mortar fire.

As I write these words now, I can see an O-1 spotter aircraft making lazy hawk-like circles at about 5000 feet over a tree line. The tree line is less than a mile from here, and the view is obstructed only by a bunker about 1500 feet closer to the wood line than we are. Behind us about three miles I hear a dull thump. There is about 30 seconds of silence then a sound like an unattached freight car rolling down a track. Then a large geyser of smoke appears at the tree line, and a stomach jarring "Braack", as the 105 shell explodes. I saw two people running and assume they are V. C. since the shooting is there, but actually, they are too far away for one to be certain.

It gives me the strangest feeling as if I were a spectator at some bizarre sporting event because as yet, all we have done is watch exchange of fire with only occasional, almost disinterested dodging, which somehow reminds one of avoiding a foul ball at a baseball game. The light is fading now, and the chopper pilots and door gunners have returned. They are walking to the makeshift showers, carrying soap and towels, and discussing the day's mission. Another day has ended, and every man here marks one less remaining, until he returns to his loved ones.

A flight of six Air Force jets scream overhead with bombs and rockets hanging from their wings. P. F. C. Johnson is hanging out his wash, and the war goes on.

Dexter Florist Chosen Finalist

POPLAR BLUFF--Mrs. Kathryn Skelton, of the Lucas Flower Shop, Dexter, was selected as finalist to represent this area in the FTD "Designer of the Year" contest following judging of entries at the meeting of FTD's district 8-1.

Ranking florists from all over the United States and Canada are competing in their home areas to gain the finals of the North American tournament which will be held at the annual convention of Florists Transworld Delivery Association at Pittsburgh, in August.

In other business conducted during the Poplar Bluff meeting, Fred W. Lowe of Herrin, Ill., was elected district representative to the FTD's regional conference, Mrs. Juanita Duncombe of Malden, Mo., was elected chairman and Mary Crews Joplin of Caruthersville was named secretary and treasurer of district 8-1.

SENIOR GIRL SCOUT Carolyn Kirby, Troop No. 201, presents a safety daisy to Richard Montgomery to remind him to drive safely.

ABOUT OUR SCHOOLS

by LYNN TWITTY

We appreciate the co-operation of the Tanner Street Church of God Board, in allowing us to use their education building classrooms to begin the Head Start Program which will get underway sometime this week. We will move the classes from the Tanner Street Church of God location to Southwest School after our regular school session ends in the spring. The Southwest School is air conditioned and was the location of last summer's Head Start Program.

Not only have we received excellent co-operation from the Tanner Street Church but several other churches offered the use of their facilities for this purpose. We are keenly appreciative of the support and co-operation which we get from Sikeston Ministerial Alliance and the supporting churches, in helping us to achieve some of our educational aims.

This year's Head Start will enroll approximately 240 children with a priority given to those who will be first graders next year. A majority of these must come from low-income families but enrollment is not restricted to this group.

The purpose of Head Start is to provide educational experiences that will enable them to compete with more fortunate children when they begin school.

Our experiences in last summer's Head Start Program was that it was one of the most successful of the Federally sponsored program which we have operated. Our teachers are almost solid in their opinion that the children who attended Head Start last summer, have been helped in that they were more eager and willing to learn when school started this year. We are giving some tests and keeping some records which we think will prove this point.

One director or co-ordinator is to be employed. There will be twelve teacher aids, two secretaries, one nurse, one psychologist, and the necessary custodial employees. The children will be furnished a hot noonday lunch and transportation will be provided. Those wishing additional details about Head Start may talk to Bob Miller, Director of Elementary Education.

School will be dismissed on March 17-18 in order that all faculty members may attend the annual Southeast Missouri District Teacher's Association meeting which will be held in Cape Girardeau. This might be a good time for parents to schedule medical or dental appointments, to plan a brief family trip, etc.

According to Senior High Principal Roger Sherman's report, first semester grades there, omitting physical education and music, were as follows: There were 439 A's; 1741 B's; 2525 C's; 1019 were in the D category; and 100 students received failing grades.

It is difficult to make definite conclusions regarding the distribution of grades, or for that matter, any exact comparison between students. The reason being that no two teachers grade exactly alike, even though they try to maintain as nearly the same standards as possible, and because students vary so much as individuals. We believe that most of our teachers are fairly realistic when it comes to grading students, that is the student makes his own grade, and gets just about what he deserves. This distribution of grades as reported by Principal Sherman, would indicate that most of our students are doing better than average work. We hope that it presents a true picture and naturally we would like to see all of the F and D grades in the C and above category. But we doubt the students have changed that much since we were in school.

The school year, is nearing its final phase, just as "time marches on" and we must begin thinking in terms of end-of-school activities. To list a few: Open House for parents and friends, Baccalaureate, Commencement, and a considerable number of other social and educational activities that are important to, and for, students. Open House dates are as follows: Senior High School, Friday, May 13; Matthews School, May 17; Southwest and Lincoln, May 18; Airport and Lee Hunter, May 19; and Middle School, May 20.

Baccalaureate services are scheduled for Sunday, May 22 and school will close with commencement Friday, May 27.

Our area Trade-Technical Institute has attracted considerable attention from other school officials throughout the Midwest. We have had visitors, including Superintendents, Vocational Educators, Principals, and Board Members from Elton, Chillicothe, Poplar Bluff, Fox-Arnold and Columbia, Missouri and from a number of school officials from around Benton, Illinois. Other Missouri school officials scheduling visits in the near future are from Neosho and Lebanon.

Most of these visitors are either operating area schools or plan their formation. They observe our operation to get ideas to assist them or perhaps to profit from some of our mistakes.

Most of these visitors are referred to us by the State Department of Education.

There is a vast difference in the ability of school districts to finance an educational program on the basis of the taxable valuation per child or the ratio between total enrollment and total assessed valuation of the school district.

The important thing in providing quality education, or the lack thereof, is the amount of dollars per child. These dollars pay for the many necessary items and services required to operate a school. Usually, in fact almost always, the best schools exist where the per pupil expenditure is highest. The only source of school

It's hot here. I expected that, but I wasn't prepared for it. The Army is lenient here regarding the uniforms, and is allowing the soldier to dress for comfort rather than on spit and polish style. Everyone took immediate advantage of this and peeled off their shirts. Now, one week later, am much wiser though sunburned group of men resemble Arabs as they hang handkerchiefs, towels, and even T-shirts from the back of their hats to help ward off the relentless sun. We have also put our shirts back on, with the sleeves rolled all the way down to protect our arms.

The air base here is a center period. Other of our schools report equal interest in reading on the part of their children.

of activity. All day long the helicopters take off and queue up in massive groups as they leave on an assault mission. The heavy roar of their engines, and the popping of the rotor blades send shock waves to the ground, and we tingle slightly as we look up at them and return a door gunner's casual wave. Truthfully, there is more than the vibrations making us tingle. There is also a strong sense of pride; and we are all anxious to be declared operational, so that we may join them. We will get our orientation rides soon, then we can go too.

I can't say where we are, but the area is secured only by the strength of our perimeter defense. Every one hundred yards around the Airfield, there is a bunker. There is concertina (barbed wire), and a mine field. Beyond this is Charlie. In American G. I. idiom, the V. C. are called Charlie, from the phonetic alphabet "Victor Charlie" for V. C. or, Charlie for short.

At night there is a steady exchange of fire between our Perimeter Guards and Charlie. We can sit in front of our tents and watch the tracers lacing through the dark night, and hear the sharp reports of the rifles and machine guns.

No one worries much about the small arms from that far away, but if we hear a whang and a whoosh, we dive for our sand bag barricades and wish we could turn into an insect, so that we could better avoid the deadly crump of incoming mortar fire.

As I write these words now, I can see an O-1 spotter aircraft making lazy hawk-like circles at about 5000 feet over a tree line. The tree line is less than a mile from here, and the view is obstructed only by a bunker about 1500 feet closer to the wood line than we are. Behind us about three miles I hear a dull thump. There is about 30 seconds of silence then a sound like an unattached freight car rolling down a track. Leisure time is no longer a problem. Thanks to modern methods of transportation, you use it all up getting to and from work.

Highway Commission Issues Call for Road Bids Totaling $7 Million

The Missouri State Highway Commission has set April 1 for opening bids on highway construction and improvements estimated to cost about $7,000,000. The work covers about 19 miles of the state's highways and extends into 18 counties and the cities of St. Joseph, Columbia, St. Louis and Kennett. Interstate system work includes:

BOONE: Interstate Route 70--highway screening (planting of trees and shrubs) at a point about two miles west of Columbia.

CITY OF ST. LOUIS: Interstate Route 70 -- highway screening (planting of trees and shrubs) north and south of Angelica Street.

ST. CHARLES: Interstate Route 70 -- highway screening (planting of trees and shrubs) at a point about two and one-half miles west of Route K.

Primary system projects are:

BOONE: U.S. Route 63--highway screening (planting of trees and shrubs) at a point about 1 1/2 miles north of the Callaway county line.

ST. LOUIS: U.S. Route 40--3.3 miles grading, widening, signing and resurfacing two 24-foot wide asphaltic concrete pavements from Woods Mill Road east to Interstate Route 244.

CHRISTIAN: U. S. Route 65--highway screening (planting of trees and shrubs) about three miles north of Route BB.

OREGON: U. S. Route 63--(Thayer Relocation) 3.4 miles grading, bridging and laying one 24-foot wide portland cement concrete pavement on part and two 24-foot wide portland cement concrete pavements on part from Route 19 south to the Arkansas state line. Includes a 360-foot continuous plate girder bridge over Warm Fork and a 400-foot like structure also over Warm Fork and the St. Louis and San Francisco Railroad.

DUNKLIN: Route 84--2.5 miles grading, bridging and laying one 24-foot wide asphaltic concrete pavement from Kennett west to the St. Francis River. Includes a double 12 by 11-foot concrete box culvert at Varney River Lateral (Ditch No. 3) and a 117-foot continuous I-beam span bridge over Varney River (Shipley Slough).

STODDARD: U.S. Route 60--highway screening (planting of trees and shrubs) about 2 1/2 miles east of Fisk and about four miles east of Fisk.

Urban system improvements include:

BUCHANAN: U.S. Route 169--Grading, asphaltic concrete surfacing, lighting and traffic signals in St. Joseph at the intersection of U.S. Route 169 and Route 6.

BOONE: U.S. Route 63--highway screening (planting of trees and shrubs) at Columbia at the intersection of the U.S. Route 63 spur and Route WW.

BOONE: Route 740 -- lighting and traffic signals in Columbia at the Routes TT, K and College Avenue intersections.

BOONE: Route 740 -- 0.6 mile grading, bridging and 24-foot wide asphaltic concrete paving in Columbia from Route 763 (College Ave.) east to Business U.S. Route 63. Includes a 242-foot continuous plate girder bridge over Hinkson Creek.

ST. LOUIS: U.S. Route 40--2.7 miles grading, signing, signals and resurfacing two 24-foot wide pavements with asphaltic concrete from Interstate Route 244 east to Lindbergh Boulevard.

DUNKLIN: Route 84--0.8 mile of 36-foot wide asphaltic concrete resurfacing in Kennett.

DUNKLIN: Route 25 spur (VV)--0.8 mile of 21 and 24-foot wide asphaltic concrete resurfacing in Kennett from Route 84, south.

AN ARCHITECT'S drawing of the $1.8 million mathematics and modern languages building to be erected at the University of Missouri at St. Louis. The five-story building will provide classroom accommodations for 1,730, a 300-seat lecture room, two language laboratories, a statistical laboratory and faculty offices.

$1.8 Million Building Plans Are Approved

COLUMBIA -- The board of curators of the University of Missouri has approved final plans and specifications for a $1.8 million mathematics and modern languages building to be erected on the campus of the University of Missouri at St. Louis. President Elmer Ellis announced today.

The curators set aside $35,000 for purchase of one or more metal buildings to serve temporarily as a student union and cafeteria on the St. Louis campus.

The St. Louis campus, grown from a residence center offering junior college work, expanded into the third year of college training last fall and will become a full four-year school this year.

In recognition of the expansion, the Curators last month established a College of Arts and Science and a School of Education effective next fall, both of which will be authorized to offer degrees. The school of education can confer life certificates to teach upon graduates earning a bachelor of science in education degree.

The campus at present is utilizing a new $3.5 million classroom complex completed last fall and the old Bellerive County Club for administrative and instructional purposes on the 128-acre site in Normandy. Ultimately buildings to accommodate a study body numbering 22,000 or more are to be constructed.

The proposed mathematics and modern language building, for which the firm of Hellmuth, Obata, and Kassabaum is the architect, will be constructed from $1.2 in appropriations by the Missouri General Assembly and a grant of $600,000 from the U. S. Office of Education. Bids will be sought in the near future.

Plans call for a five-story brick and stone structure with classroom accommodations for 1,730 students and a 300-seat lecture room. It also will contain a statistical laboratory, two language laboratories, and an entire floor for faculty offices. The St. Louis campus expects to complete the building by 1967, and also to construct a $2,250,000 library building by the date.

Never in the history of the race has so much of what is called action merely of passing the whole thing along in a memo, with a half-dozen carbons.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

C. L. Blanton, Jr.
Daily Standard
Sikeston, Mo.

Dear Charlie:

Thanks for giving me the opportunity to see your 11th annual progress edition. I guess I was only faintly aware that you had gone off, and you're doing a splendid job of reproduction.

Helen and I have the paper at home for more intensive study. We're contemplating building a new home, and we're giving all pictures of new homes more than passing scrutiny, hoping to find one that suits our pocketbook and our taste. . . and you have given us--and all your other readers--something to look at that may stimulate faster action.

Editorial content of your current edition seems excellent, and when next I see you--probably at the NNA convention in Boston in July--I'd like to get you in a corner and have you answer some questions. Specifically, I'm interested in whether you used your present staff on the writing or imported a specialist, perhaps a college student or students.

Up here in the mid-north country, the Grand Island (Nebr.) Daily Independent puts out a "Farm and Ranch" edition each year. It's tabloid, and I noticed a promotional piece on their front page just last week stating that they're working on it now. When it's published, I'll remember to send you a copy to pay you for your thoughtful edition in sending your progress edition to me, as you have for several years.

Congratulations on a splendid job, and many thanks for your thoughtfulness in sending me a copy for inspection.

Cordially,

MEMO TO DRIVERS 16 TO 25
By Joseph L. Larson
Member, Post G, Minnesota
Minnesota Div. Good Roads
Chairman

The facts are in, fellows, and insurance companies deal only with facts. You lads in the 16 to 25 group are a menace to society and to yourselves when you get behind a wheel. The insurance rates on the car you drive have gone up from 20 to 50 per cent. Some of you may already be in the special risk group in which case I don't see how you can afford to drive at all because the rate is prohibitive.

Since insurance rates are based on the number of accidents, arrests, and fatalities in your age group, this makes you the worst drivers on the road. You may be handsome enough to be a movie star--you may be nice to your mother--you may know more about compression ratios and carburetion than the foreman at the local garage, but when you get on the highway you act like a fool.

The rubber burns, the transmission smokes, the needle moves up past 90, the car careens on two wheels, and you have proved, I suppose, that you are the greatest hero since John Paul Jones although an alley cat with nine lives would surely jump out of your car at the first stop sign.

Maybe you are a good driver. After all, we are not condemning you all, because you are not all crazy drivers. But then why do you good drivers encourage those locked nut Lochnivars by riding with them. Don't you realize that they are robbing you of at least $50 a year in car insurance costs, and still want to put up with them until they take your life.

And you girls in the same group--age--you are, on the other hand judged to be among the nation's best drivers according to many surveys and yet you will ride along with the crank-case drips.

Sure, you may think they are chumps, but why not tell them so. Often it is you they are trying to impress.

The Daily Sikeston Standard is my main source of information for buying all family needs, because -- I read it from cover to cover every night. I love to read and I am eager to know the latest news on all phases that the paper publishes. I feel I can economize by watching for the sales as they are advertised, and by taking advantage of these sales according to my family needs.

Dear Charlie,

Thanks for sending me a copy of your Progress Edition again. You always do a tremendous job on this and I enjoy going over it.

It seems to a little fellow like me that it must be a whole of a job to turn out an edition such as this, but I presume that when you are geared to it that it goes along in pretty good shape.

Sid Cullen up in Rockland, Maine, gets out a special edition each year, the same general idea as yours and he sends me a copy and this year it happened to come just a day or two before yours. I am sending his copy on to you as I think you might be interested in it, and I'm sending your issue on to Sid.

Sid has quite an operation on in Maine and he was president of the New England Press Association the year before I was.

We've been having quite a winter here this year. We are right in the heart of a big ski region, so everybody is happy when there is snow and lots of it. So far as we in the lower areas are concerned we would be just as happy if they had the snow on the slopes and we did not. But it doesn't seem to come that way. But it surely does help out the economy in the area.

I often review our trip in Canada back in 1955. That surely was an event to remember. Hope all goes well with you. We keep pretty well with the job with not much letup.

Three Seek Council Job

KENNETT -- A three-way race is now in progress for city councilman from ward five since Winford Henry filed.

Wayne Challand, the incumbent councilman, had filed early for re-election and James Allen Lynn has since filed. All of the councilmen have filed for re-election, except Hardie Craft, Jr., in ward one. Dr. Harry Goddard has filed for his place on the city council.

Others running for councilmen, all for re-election, are Dr. John Scott of ward two, Arthur Bell of ward three and Thurman Tinker of ward four.

The deadline for filing is March 21, according to Clerk Olds.

When schemes are laid in advance, it is surprising how often the circumstances fit in with them.

Search for Rape Suspects Continues

CHARLESTON -- A search is still going on for two suspects reported to have raped two women east of East Prairie Saturday night, Sheriff J. W. Simmons and Deputy Jack Ivie said.

The location was on highway 80, five miles east of East Prairie, after the women and a young man, a relative of one of the women, had a flat tire on their automobile.

The men being sought are Negroes, but no detailed description of them has been obtained.

The Daily Sikeston Standard, Sikeston, Mo. Thursday, March 10, 1966

tained. The men were driving a truck, the three white persons reported.

One of the women lives in New Madrid County and the other woman and man live in St. Louis.

It was said the Negro men offered to go for help and left in the truck. They soon returned and forced the young man to leave.

The officers later found empty 22 caliber shells at the scene. The young man turned in an alarm promptly and officers rushed to the scene.

Officers including the state patrol checked numerous trucks in Pemisnot and Mississippi counties Monday. An Illinois truck was to be checked by the officers.

Deputy Jack Ivie said that leads have been checked out at both Caruthersville and Hayti, but no suspects have been brought in.

One of the women attacked was visiting in Conran.

GO TO CHURCH SUNDAY

What the Communists Are Saying About You

by Karl Baarslag

When Captive Nations Week was first inaugurated several years ago, Khrushchev and other leading Communists flared with rage. Communist publications have never stopped denouncing this "brazen provocation." Informed American anti-Communists and those closely watching Soviet reactions for the past several years have futilely tried to alert official Washington to this Achilles Heel in the Soviet propaganda armor. President Johnson's proclamation of Captive Nations Week this year, undoubtedly written in the State Department, never mentioned the dread word "Communism" and was as weak and watered down as human ingenuity could make it. Nevertheless, this year Communist propagandist masterminds, anticipating this program by filling several issues of New Times and other Soviet publications with glowing recitals of the idyllic bliss and prosperity enjoyed by the captive Baltic states.

Vietnam and driving the United States "imperialist aggressors" out of that unhappy land remains No. 1 top priority on the list of main Communist objectives. New Times literally comb the world from pole to pole for snappy items with a good "class angle" or anti-American slant. Main emphasis is always on the invincibility of the Communist cause and the utter hopelessness and uselessness of all American efforts to stop Communism. The magazine usually carries amusing cartoons derogating Uncle Sam or fat, stupid capitalists. Total world circulation is not given but it must be considerable.

World Marxist Review, subtitled "Problems of Peace and Socialism," is published in seventeen languages including Vietnamese. The English language edition is printed in Canada on good stock paper with an attractive cover but the editorial offices are in Prague, Czechoslovakia. World Marxist Review is published for top-rank Communists, important fellow-travellers, and intellectuals generally. Most of its articles are reports on the various Communist parties throughout the world and their own particular problems. The lead article is nearly always a directive binding on all parties or carries the latest Moscow pronouncement on some burning issue of critical importance to all secret sympathizers and supporters.

The April, 1965, issue of World Marxist Review devoted its lead article to the urgent necessity for "Unity of Action of the World Communist Movement," an obvious slap at Red China and the Maoist "line." An article entitled "Gaiers and Prisoners in the New World" recites the persecution suffered by Communists in the western hemisphere as a result of American instigation. The U.S. runs special schools where

Latin-Americans are taught how to combat "subversive activities." Despite brutal repression and persecution, however, W.M.R. reports "the revolutionary upsurge of the peoples and movements for national liberation, democracy, and the rights of the working people are growing."

The May 1965 issue of W.M.R. inside cover carried a boldface two paragraph message "CURB THE U.S. AGGRESSIONS"

To the naked challenge of ruthless imperialist aggressors the progressive forces throughout the world are responding with growing demands and insistence to put an end to the U.S. aggression in Vietnam, withdraw the U.S. troops from Vietnam, and end the bombing of North Vietnam.

A call issued by the World Peace Council to hold over May 23-30 an International Week of Action by all friends of peace in support of the people of Vietnam has met with wide response. In all countries Communists in their part are developing the movement of solidarity with the people of Vietnam and taking concrete actions to help them repel the U.S. imperialist aggression. Half the intervention in Vietnam--this call resounds all over the world! (To be continued)

FCC Rules On Tapping Please Long

WASHINGTON -- Sen. Edward V. Long (D-Mo.) said that he is pleased that "the use of radio devices for eavesdropping purposes finally will be somewhat curtailed."

The Senator was commenting on the federal communications commission's action in adopting rules outlawing eavesdropping in private conversations.

Senator Long is chairman of the senate subcommittee on administrative practice and procedure, the subcommittee which has been conducting hearings on invasions of privacy and the use of electronic eavesdropping devices.

Senator Long congratulated the F. C. C. for taking the lead in this field. "This is a small, though important, step in the uphill battle to remove these little 'bugging' devices from the market place," the Senator said.

The rules promulgated by the F. C. C. would prohibit, with the exception for law enforcement agencies, the use of any radio device to overhear or record the private conversations of others without the consent of all parties engaging in the conversations.

Highway Commission Issues Call for Road Bids Totaling $7 Million

The Missouri State Highway Commission has set April 1 for opening bids on highway construction and improvements estimated to cost about $7,000,000. The work covers about 19 miles of the state's highways and extends into 18 counties and the cities of St. Joseph, Columbia, St. Louis and Kennett. Interstate system work includes:

BOONE: Interstate Route 70--highway screening (planting of trees and shrubs) at a point about two miles west of Columbia.

CITY OF ST. LOUIS: Interstate Route 70 -- highway screening (planting of trees and shrubs) at a point about two and one-half miles west of Route K.

Primary system projects are: BOONE: U.S. Route 63--highway screening (planting of trees and shrubs) at a point about 1 1/2 miles north of the Callaway county line.

ST. LOUIS: U.S. Route 40 -- 3.3 miles grading, widening, signing and resurfacing two 24-foot wide asphaltic concrete pavements from Woods Mill Road east to Interstate Route 244.

CHRISTIAN: U. S. Route 65--highway screening (planting of trees and shrubs) about three miles north of Route BB.

OREGON: U. S. Route 63--(Thayer Relocation) 3.4 miles grading, bridging and laying one 24-foot wide portland cement concrete pavement on part and two 24-foot wide portland cement concrete pavements on part from Route 19 south to the Arkansas state line. Includes a 360-foot continuous plate girder bridge over Warm Fork and a 400-foot like structure also over Warm Fork and the St. Louis and San Francisco

Railroad. DUNKLIN: Route 84 -- 2.5 miles grading, bridging and laying one 24-foot wide asphaltic concrete pavement from Kennett west to the St. Francis River. Includes a double 12 by 11-foot concrete box culvert at Varney River Lateral (Ditch No. 3) and a 117-foot continuous I-beam span bridge over Varney River (Shipley Slough). STODDARD: U.S. Route 60--highway screening (planting of trees and shrubs) about 2 1/2 miles east of Fisk and about four miles east of Fisk. Urban system improvements include:

BUCHANAN: U.S. Route 169--Grading, asphaltic concrete surfacing, lighting and traffic signals in St. Joseph at the intersection of U.S. Route 169 and Route 6.

BOONE: U.S. Route 63--highway screening (planting of trees and shrubs) at Columbia at the intersection of the U.S. Route 63 spur and Route WW.

BOONE: Route 740 -- lighting and traffic signals in Columbia at the Routes TT, K and College Avenue intersections.

BOONE: Route 740 -- 0.6 mile grading, bridging and 24-foot wide asphaltic concrete paving in Columbia from Route 763 (College Ave.) east to Business U.S. Route 63. Includes a 242-foot continuous plate girder bridge over Hinkson Creek.

ST. LOUIS: U.S. Route 40--2.7 miles grading, signing, signals and resurfacing two 24-foot wide pavements with asphaltic concrete from Interstate Route 244 east to Lindbergh Boulevard.

DUNKLIN: Route 84--0.8 mile of 36-foot wide asphaltic concrete resurfacing in Kennett. DUNKLIN: Route 25 spur (VV)--0.8 mile of 21 and 24-foot wide asphaltic concrete resurfacing in Kennett from Route 84, south.

AN ARCHITECT'S drawing of the $1.8 million mathematics and modern languages building to be erected at the University of Missouri at St. Louis. The five-story building will provide classroom accommodations for 1,730, a 300-seat lecture room, two language laboratories, a statistical laboratory and faculty offices.

$1.8 Million Building Plans Are Approved

COLUMBIA -- The board of curators of the University of Missouri has approved final plans and specifications for a $1.8 million mathematics and modern languages building to be erected on the campus of the University of Missouri at St. Louis, President Elmer Ellis announced today.

The curators set aside $35,000 for purchase of one or more metal buildings to serve temporarily as a student union and cafeteria on the St. Louis campus.

The St. Louis campus, grown from a residence center of offering junior college work, expanded into the third year of college training last fall and will become a full four-year school this year.

In recognition of the expansion, the Curators last month established a College of Arts and Science and a School of Education effective next fall, both of which will be authorized to offer degrees. The school of education can confer life certificates to teach upon graduates earning a bachelor of science in education degree.

The campus at present is utilizing a new $3.5 million classroom complex completed last fall and the old Bellerive County Club for administrative and instructional purposes on the 128-acre site in Normandy. Ultimately buildings to accommodate a study body numbering 22,000 or more are to be constructed.

The proposed mathematics and modern language building, for which the firm of Hellmuth, Obata, and Kassabaum is the architect, will be constructed from $1.2 in appropriations by the Missouri General Assembly and a grant of $600,000 from the U. S. Office of Education. Bids will be sought in the near future.

Plans call for a five-story brick and stone structure with classroom accommodations for 1,730 students and a 300-seat lecture room. It also will contain a statistical laboratory, two language laboratories, and an entire floor for faculty offices. The St. Louis campus expects to complete the building by 1967, and also to construct a $2,250,000 library building by the date.

Never in the history of the race has so much of what is called action merely of passing the whole thing along in a memo, with a half-dozen carbons.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

C. L. Blanton, Jr.
Daily Standard
Sikeston, Mo.

Dear Charlie:

Thanks for giving me the opportunity to see your 11th annual progress edition. I guess I was only faintly aware that you had gone off, and you're doing a splendid job of reproduction.

Helen and I have the paper at home for more intensive study. We're contemplating building a new home, and we're giving all pictures of new homes more than passing scrutiny, hoping to find one that suits our pocketbook and our taste. . . and you have given us--and all your other readers -- something to look at that may stimulate faster action.

Editorial content of your current edition seems excellent, and when next I see you--probably at the NNA convention in Boston in July--I'd like to get you in a corner and have you answer some questions. Specifically, I'm interested in whether you used your present staff on the writing or imported a specialist, perhaps a college student or students.

Up here in the mid-north country, the Grand Island (Nebr.) Daily Independent puts out a "Farm and Ranch" edition each year. It's tabloid, and I noticed a promotional piece on their front page just last week stating that they're working on it now. When it's published, I'll remember to send you a copy to pay you for your thoughtfulness in sending your progress edition to me, as you have for several years.

Congratulations on a splendid job, and many thanks for your thoughtfulness in sending me a copy for inspection.

Cordially,
Jack Lough

Dear Charlie,
Here's a quote from the "T. P. A." magazine.
Thought you might like to use it if "appropo".
Personally, I think there's a lot of good sound research and logic in it.

MEMO TO DRIVERS 16 TO 25
By Joseph L. Larson
Member, Post G. Minnesota
Minnesota Div. Good Roads
Chairman

The facts are in, fellows, and insurance companies deal only with facts. You lads in the 16 to 25 group are a menace to society and to yourselves when you get behind a wheel. The insurance rates on the car you drive have gone up from 20 to 50 per cent. Some of you may already be in the special risk group in which case I don't see how you can afford to drive at all because the rate is prohibitive.

Since insurance rates are based on the number of accidents, arrests, and fatalities in your age group, this makes you the worst drivers on the road. You may be handsome enough to be a movie star--you may be nice to your mother -- you may know more about compression ratios and carburetion than the foreman at the local garage, but when you get on the highway you act like a fool.

The rubber burns, the transmission smokes, the needle moves up past 90, the car careens on two wheels, and you have proved, I suppose, that you are the greatest hero since John Paul Jones although an alley cat with nine lives would surely jump out of your car at the first stop sign.

Maybe you are a good driver. After all, we are not condemning you all, because you are not all crazy drivers. But then why do you good drivers encourage those locked out Lochinvars by riding with them. Don't you realize that they are robbing you of at least $50 a year in car insurance costs, and still want to put up with them until they take your life.

And you girls in the same group --age--you are, on the other hand judged to be among the nation's best drivers according to many surveys and yet you will ride along with the crank-case drips.

Sure, you may think they are chumps, but why not tell them so. Often it is you they are trying to impress.

"Why I prefer the Daily Sikeston Standard as my Source of information for buying all family needs."

The Daily Sikeston Standard is my main source of information for buying all family needs, because . . . I read it from cover to cover every night. I love to read and I am eager to know the latest news on all phases that the paper publishes. I feel I can economize by watching for the sales as they are advertised, and by taking advantage of these sales according to my family needs.

Dear Charlie,

Thanks for sending me a copy of your Progress Edition again. You always do a tremendous job on this and I enjoy going over it.

It seems to a little fellow like me that it must be a whale of a job to turn out an edition such as this, but I presume that when you are geared to it that it goes along in pretty good shape.

Sid Cullen up in Rockland, Maine, gets out a special edition each year, the same general idea as yours and he sends me a copy and this year it happened to come just a day or two before yours. I am sending his copy on to you as I think you might be interested in it, and I'm sending your issue on to Sid.

Sid has quite an operation up in Maine and he was president of the New England Press Association the year before I was.

We've been having quite a winter here this year. We are right in the heart of a big ski region, so everybody is happy when there is snow and lots of it. So far as we in the lower areas are concerned we would be just as happy if they had the snow on the slopes and we did not. But it doesn't seem to come that way. But it surely does help out the economy in the area.

I often review our trip in Canada back in 1955. That surely was an event to remember. Hope all goes well with you. We keep pretty well to the job with not much letup.

Three Seek Council Job

KENNETT -- A three-way race is now in progress for city councilman from ward five since Winford Henry filed.

Wayne Chailand, the incumbent councilman, had filed early for re-election and James Allen Lynn has since filed. All of the councilmen have filed for re-election, except Hardie Craft, Jr., in ward one. Dr. Harry Goddard has filed for his place on the city council.

Others running for councilmen, all for re-election, are Dr. John Scott of ward two, Arthur Bell of ward three and Thurman Tinker of ward four. The deadline for filing is March 21, according to Clerk Olds.

When schemes are laid in advance, it is surprising how often the circumstances fit in with them.

Search for Rape

Suspects Continues

CHARLESTON -- A search is still going on for two suspects reported to have raped two women east of East Prairie Saturday night. Sheriff J. W. Simmons and Deputy Jack Ivie said.

The location was on highway 80, five miles east of East Prairie, after the women and a young man, a relative of one of the women, had a flat tire on their automobile.

The men being sought are Negroes, but no detailed description of them has been obtained.

The Daily Sikeston Standard, Sikeston, Mo.

tained. The men were driving a truck, the three white persons reported.

One of the women lives in New Madrid County and the other woman and man live in St. Louis.

It was said the Negro men offered to go for help and left in the truck. They soon returned and forced the young man to leave.

The officers later found empty 22 caliber shells at the scene. The young man turned in an alarm promptly and officers rushed to the scene. Officers including the state patrol checked numerous trucks in Pemiscot and Mississippi counties Monday. An Illinois truck was to be checked by the officers.

Deputy Jack Ivie said that leads have been checked out at both Caruthersville and Hayti, but no suspects have been brought in.

One of the women attacked was visiting in Conran.

What the Communists Are Saying About You

by Karl Baarslag

When Captive Nations Week was first inaugurated several years ago, Khrushchev and other leading Communists flared with rage. Communist publications have never stopped denouncing this "brazen provocation." Informed American anti-Communists and those closely watching Soviet reactions for the past several years have futilely tried to alert official Washington to this Achilles Heel in the Soviet propaganda armor. President Johnson's proclamation of Captive Nations Week this year, undoubtedly written in the State Department, never mentioned the dread word "Communism" and was as weak and watered down as human ingenuity could make it. Nevertheless, this year Communist propagandist masterminds, anticipated this program by filling several issues of New Times and other Soviet publications with glowing recitals of the idyllic bliss and prosperity enjoyed by the captive Baltic states.

Vietnam and driving the United States "imperialist aggressors" out of that unhappy land remains No. 1 top priority on the list of main Communist objectives. New Times literally combs the world from pole to pole for snappy items with a good "class angle" or anti-American slant. Main emphasis is always on the inevitability of the Communist cause and the utter hopelessness and uselessness of all American efforts to stop Communism. The magazine usually carries amusing cartoons derogating Uncle Sam or fat, stupid capitalists. Total world circulation is not given but it must be considerable.

World Marxist Review, subtitled "Problems of Peace and Socialism", is published in seventeen languages including Vietnamese. The English language edition is printed in Canada on good stock paper with an attractive cover but the editorial offices are in Prague, Czechoslovakia. World Marxist Review is published for top-rank Communists, important fellow-travellers, and intellectuals generally. Most of its articles are reports on the various Communist parties throughout the world and their own particular problems. The lead article is nearly always a directive binding on all parties or carries the latest Moscow pronouncement on some burning issue of critical importance to all secret sympathizers and supporters.

The April, 1965, issue of World Marxist Review devoted its lead article to the urgent necessity for "Unity of Action of the World Communist Movement", an obvious slap at Red China and the Maoist "line." An article entitled "Gaijlers and Prisoners in the New World" recites the persecution suffered by Communists in the western hemisphere as a result of American instigation. The U.S. runs special schools where Latin-Americans are "taught how to combat "subversive activities." Despite brutal repression and persecution, however, W.M.R. reports "the revolutionary upsurge of the peoples and movements for national liberation, democracy, and the rights of the working people are growing."

The May 1965 issue of W.M.R. inside cover carried a boldface two paragraph message "CURB THE U.S. AGGRESSIONS."

To the naked challenge of ruthless imperialist aggressors the progressive forces throughout the world are responding with growing demands and insistence to put an end to the U.S. aggression in Vietnam, withdraw the U.S. troops from Vietnam, and end the bombing of North Vietnam.

A call issued by the World Peace Council to hold over May 23-30 an International Week of Action by all friends of peace in support of the people of Vietnam has met with wide response. In all countries Communists on their part are developing the movement of solidarity with the people of Vietnam and taking concrete actions to help them repel the U.S. imperialist aggression. Hark the intervention in Vietnam--this call resounds all over the world!

FCC Rules On Tapping Please Long

WASHINGTON -- Sen. Edward V. Long (D-Mo.) said that he is pleased that "the use of radio devices for eavesdropping purposes finally will be somewhat curtailed". The Senator was commenting on the federal communications commission's action in adopting rules outlawing eavesdropping in private conversations.

Senator Long is chairman of the senate subcommittee on administrative practice and procedure, the subcommittee which has been conducting hearings on invasions of privacy and the use of electronic eavesdropping devices.

Senator Long congratulated the F. C. C. for taking the lead in this field. "This is a small, though important, step in the uphill battle to remove these little 'bugging' devices from the market place", the Senator said.

The rules promulgated by the F. C. C. would prohibit, with the exception for law enforcement agencies, the use of any radio device to overhear or record the private conversations of others without the consent of all parties engaging in the conversations.

The Prayer

For Today From The Upper Room

(God) rescued Lot, who was a good man, shocked by the dissolute habits of the lawless society in which he lived. . . The Lord is well able to rescue the godly out of trials. (II Peter 2:7-9, NEB)

PRAYER: O God, may we turn away from sin and turn to Christ as our only hope of salvation. Grant us repentance, faith, and eternal life. We ask this in the Redeemer's name. Amen.

she tried to hold his hand and tell him. He suddenly became very cool to her and has been that way ever since. Yvette now realizes that he misunderstood her intentions and she is sick over it.

This doctor is quite youthful and handsome and no doubt many women patients make passes at him. Yvette has never had a roving thought, much less a roving eye. She is an affectionate person who sometimes goes overboard to let people know she appreciates them. How can she get this across to the doctor so he will be friendly again?

--UPSET, TOO

Dear Upset; Yvette could have expressed her appreciation without trying to hold the doctor's hand. Suggest that she restrain herself for future visits. The doctor will become friendlier when she demonstrates by her behavior that she is not after him.

Dear Ann Landers; I just read the letter from the mother who complained because her miserable neighbor ran over her son's bike in the driveway. The same thing happened to me and I am no miserable neighbor. I'm a pretty decent guy.

I felt bad about wrecking the kid's bike, but I was also mighty thankful that it was a bike I had run over and not a small child. When I confronted the parents with pieces of their son's bike they admitted their son had been extremely careless and happily accepted my proposal that we share the cost of a new bike.

I will never again back out without checking behind me. The boy vowed that he will never again leave his bike in a driveway. So we both learned something.--SECOND CHANCE

Dear Second Chance; I hope all of us learned something from your letter. Thanks for the education.

Southeast Missouri officers are engaged in a district-wide hunt for two hitch-hikers dressed in soldiers uniforms, who Monday night, held up and robbed Albert M. Stanley, 65-year-old traveling salesman, beat him severely, stole his car and then attempted to cover up their crime by drowning their victim in a drainage ditch.

Mr. and Mrs. Glenn Nicholson of Sikeston, have purchased the Goff Hotel in Blytheville, Ark., and took over and started operating the property Tuesday. The hotel is located in the 400 block of Main street in the heart of the business district. The purchase was made from Mrs. M. Reynolds, owner of the equipment, and William F. Doan, who had leased the hotel from Mrs. Reynolds and who owned part of the equipment.

Contributions to the American Red Cross Fund drive in the City of Sikeston alone, amounted to approximately $3,000, according to Harry Dover, county-wide drive chairman.

Richard McClellan left the latter part of last week for Greenville, Miss., where he will be employed. His wife will join him later.

Answers Your Problems

Dear Ann Landers: I am a teen-age Canadian girl who loves her country and is very proud of it.

I just returned from a visit with an aunt and uncle who moved from Canada to Nevada last year. I learned from a neighbor girl that they had introduced themselves to everyone in the community as new arrivals from London, England (instead of London, Ontario).

I asked my aunt why they did that and she said, "U.S. citizens look down on Canadians. They think we are peculiar." Then she added, "They consider the English, on the other hand, quite elegant."

I never knew this before and am terribly hurt. Please explain.--YOUR NEIGHBOR TO THE NORTH

Dear Neighbor; Don't judge all U.S. citizens by a few ignoramus. Speaking for myself, I can tell you that I have met many Canadians and I find them refreshingly wholesome and charming -- particularly the teen-agers.

Dear Ann Landers: My wife is worrying herself sick over something and I need your help. Yvette (not her real name) has been ill off and on for a long time. Several months ago she went to a doctor who did more for her than all the other doctors put together. Not only is she feeling fine but she is bright and cheerful for the first time in years.

Yvette wanted the doctor to know how grateful she was so

Prisoner in Kennett Stabbed

KENNETT -- Jimmy Carter, 23, of Kennett, who was being held at the Dunklin county jail on an armed robbery charge, was stabbed Monday night by a fellow prisoner.

Sheriff Raymond Scott reported that he was aroused by prisoners knocking on the door about midnight and, upon investigation, found Carter on the floor with a knife in the right side of his abdomen.

Carter was taken to Dunklin county hospital where surgery was performed at 1:30 a.m. Tuesday. His condition was given as satisfactory.

Carter was apprehended and jailed for the armed robbery, with an accomplice, of Smith's East "Y" Shell Service Station on First St. in Kennett

Telephone Operator Is Good Skater

Ellen Adams

ST. CHARLES -- Mrs. Ellen Adams, St. Charles telephone operator, has a hobby which promotes her physical fitness and is relaxing. It's roller skating.

She has become proficient during the four and one half years she's been skating seriously, and she holds proficiency ratings in a Missouri skating organization.

"While living in Southeast Missouri, I found roller skating to be a pleasant diversion, but I never was serious about it," Mrs. Adams noted. "Then, after we moved to St. Charles, I joined a beginner's class at a local skating rink and developed my interest."

To gain admittance to the skate club, however, Mrs. Adams had to pass a state proficiency test in which she performed skate dances to the tango, waltz and mambo.

"Most people think the waltz is easiest, but actually it's the hardest because of the timing. Each step has to be on the beat," the operator explained.

After passing the state exam, Mrs. Adams received her first "bar," signifying her achievement and filling the club membership requirement. She later gained a second bar and hopes to eventually receive the bronze medal, highest rating.

Daughter, Jackie, 9, is following in her mother's "skate steps."

Jackie has been skating for three years and is nearly ready for her first state test. However, I'm not pushing her," Mrs. Adams said.

The operator's husband -- Bob, a bus driver -- doesn't skate at all.

Mrs. Adams joined Southwestern Bell as an operator in New Madrid in 1954. She transferred to Stikeston in 1955, then returned to New Madrid in 1956. The family moved to St. Charles in 1961.

Although skating is the operator's hobby, she also is a seamstress, making clothes for both herself and Jackie. With her daughter becoming more interested in skating, Mrs. Adams makes look-alike costumes for them.

Collins Trial for Rape Set May 10

CARUTHERSVILLE -- The trial of James A. Collins, 37, charged with murder by rape, has been set in Pemiscot county circuit court for May 10. Judge Arthur U. Goodman, Jr. of Kennett, who will be the presiding judge for the trial, was here this morning to confer with Sharon J. Pate, Pemiscot Co. prosecuting attorney and other officials, and May 4 was set as the date on which Collins will be arraigned in circuit court prior to the trial.

Collins was arrested Aug. 28, for the murder by rape of Sue Melton, 23, of Memphis, Tenn., a former Portageville resident.

Man's Death In Wickliffe Investigated

CHARLESTON -- Sheriff Pedro Simmons said an investigation is being conducted in connection with the finding of a dead man in an automobile at Wickliffe, Ky., Sunday night. The dead man was Frederick M. Mills, 55, of Fancy Farm, Ky.

The investigation in Mississippi county was to determine if there had been a wreck or fight in Missouri. There apparently was none, the sheriff said.

Someone at Wickliffe, Sunday night, advised officers that there had been "a sideswiping on the traffic bridge," but officers could find no such wreck or accident.

When a car was checked at Wickliffe two intoxicated men

She was found by a Caruthersville couple on the Triangle Boat Club Road, about two miles west of Caruthersville, at 12:05 a.m. that Friday and taken to Pemiscot county hospital at Hayti where she died a few hours later of internal injuries and loss of blood.

The victim was last seen leaving the Climax bar in Caruthersville with Collins Thursday night.

Collins was arraigned in magistrate court Sept. 17, 1965. In later proceedings Judge William L. Ragland was disqualified and Judge Goodman of Kennett was appointed to try the case.

got out, and a third man, said to be Mills, was dead in the car. The men, who had been drinking, were cousins, Wm. H. Ballard, 26, and James W. Ballard, 23, of Fancy Farm. Mills had bruises on the head, but these would not have caused his death, a doctor said. It is presumed Mills may have died of too much alcohol or a heart attack, officers said.

The cousins said they had been drinking in Cairo.

The investigation in Mississippi county was to determine if there had been a wreck or fight in Missouri. There apparently was none, the sheriff said.

Someone at Wickliffe, Sunday night, advised officers that there had been "a sideswiping on the traffic bridge," but officers could find no such wreck or accident.

When a car was checked at Wickliffe two intoxicated men

She was found by a Caruthersville couple on the Triangle Boat Club Road, about two miles west of Caruthersville, at 12:05 a.m. that Friday and taken to Pemiscot county hospital at Hayti where she died a few hours later of internal injuries and loss of blood.

The victim was last seen leaving the Climax bar in Caruthersville with Collins Thursday night.

Collins was arraigned in magistrate court Sept. 17, 1965, in later proceedings Judge William L. Ragland was disqualified and Judge Goodman of Kennett was appointed to try the case.

got out, and a third man, said to be Mills, was dead in the car. The men, who had been drinking, were cousins, Wm. H. Ballard, 26, and James W. Ballard, 23, of Fancy Farm.

Mills had bruises on the head, but these would not have caused his death, a doctor said. It is presumed Mills may have died of too much alcohol or a heart attack, officers said.

The cousins said they had been drinking in Cairo.

The belief that a man is as old as he feels is responsible for a great many pulled muscles.

Fulbright Example Of U.S. Dilemma

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. J.W. Fulbright is a kind of classic example of all those critical about the war in Viet Nam but snagged on the dilemma of how to end it. They have ideas on what to do or not to do — as some showed before the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, of which Fulbright is chairman — but are hazy on solutions.

Two speeches by Fulbright, an Arkansas Democrat, one last June 15 and one March 1, and a statement Sunday night show the dilemma of the critics of the Johnson administration, which is in a bit of a dilemma itself.

President Johnson tried to get the Communists to negotiate. Having failed, he must continue the war, he feels, without stepping it up to such a degree that Red China might feel impelled to jump in.

In June, Fulbright said complete victory would be too costly but unconditional withdrawal from Viet Nam is unthinkable because of the disastrous results.

Withdrawal, he felt, would betray this country's obligations to people we have promised to defend and weaken their belief in U.S. guarantees.

At the same time he was against stepping up the war, although how else the Communists can be convinced to quit fighting is difficult to imagine.

He suggested negotiations to end the war, with major concessions by both sides, although admitting Johnson's efforts to get the Communists to negotiate wound up nowhere.

Nevertheless, Fulbright envisioned a compromised peace and after that, he proposed, the United States should join with others in a large program for the social and economic development of Southeast Asia.

(Johnson had proposed just such a program weeks before Fulbright did.)

Almost a month before Fulbright's June 15 talk Johnson said the Red Chinese are bent on dominating all Asia but on March 1 Fulbright came up with another speech, this one proposing how to deal with Red China.

He suggested an agreement with Red China to neutralize all of Southeast Asia although there was nothing to indicate Red China would ever consider such an agreement.

Once such an agreement was made, Fulbright said, the United States and China should pull back all their forces. But Red China does not have forces on the soil of other nations.

How such an agreement could be policed to prevent Red Chinese cheating would be monumental in itself. Fulbright did not go into details on that.

Fulbright announced Sunday night that his Foreign Relations Committee will open hearings Tuesday aimed at increasing public knowledge about Red China. He said there is a real danger that the "open-ended" Viet Nam conflict will lead to war between the United States and said he wanted to produce some numbers with Nancy Sinatra. A date was arranged.

DONALD L. ALEXANDER, public information director of the Federal Reserve Bank in Kansas City since 1956, will join the development office staff at the University of Missouri at Kansas City, Dr. Randall M. Whaley, chancellor of U. M. K. C., announced.

Hazlewood, who is also a songwriter and singer, presented Nancy with "So Long, Babe," which she recorded. At the same time he previewed the half-finished "Boots." Nancy was entranced with it, but he refused to give her the song until he had completed it. She recorded the number at their second session.

"For three weeks it just sat there," she recalled. "I thought to myself, 'Oh, boy, failed again.' It's pretty crushing to work on records year after year and have nothing come of them."

"But then 'Boots' caught on in Hawaii and became the number-one record. Then it took off in Albany and in Philadelphia. Finally it went big in Dallas, and that was a revelation. If it could sell in Dallas, then it might sell in the South and Midwest."

It did. Sales zoomed all over the map. Reprise totaled up as many as 72,000 records in one day.

Sinatri Record No. 1

By BOB THOMAS
HOLLYWOOD AP — It's no great surprise that a Sinatra record is the No. 1 seller in the country today. Would you believe it's Nancy Sinatra's?

You would if you were attuned to the teen-age beat, Nancy's record, "These Boots Were Made For Walkin'," is atop the top 40 in sales and radio play. Over a million copies have been sold, in this country and the record is soaring in Australia, England and other countries.

All this is extremely gratifying to Nancy, a petite, wellput-together, blonde - streaked brunette.

"After recording so many records with so little success, it's pretty hard to believe what is happening," she says.

No one is happier with her hit than her noted parent, Frank Sinatra.

"He's very pleased," reports Nancy. "Now he calls me 'star'."

His reaction could well comprise more than mere paternal pride. Nancy recorded "Boots" for Reprise, her father's company, and the disc is likely to be the largest selling single in the firm's history.

How did all this come about? Nancy is quick to give credit where credit is due: to an independent record producer, Lee Hazlewood. He went to Reprise and Communist China. Americans should be "open-minded and inquisitive" and try to learn all they can about the Chinese, he said.

Last Thursday, two days after Fulbright proposed his neutralization idea, Red China linked Johnson and his critics together as "fools" and said there was no fundamental difference between them about continuing the Viet Nam war.

No Big Stock Dips

By SAM DAWSON
NEW YORK (AP) — How badly were stocks mauled in the last five days of a frenzied up and down market? They looked bad in the headlines — but for most blue chips individual losses gave no incentive for jumping out of windows.

In trading volume, March came in like a lion, with 50,406,720 shares changing hands, against 32,647,546 in the week before when the market was more orderly. But the final score for the week for the 30 blue chips on the Dow-Jones industrial index were more lamblike.

At Friday's close that index was 20.66 points lower than the previous Friday, February 25. And the fluctuations of the index captured the headlines.

But on average the 30 stocks lost just $1.50. And three of them had managed to gain a bit. A fourth was unchanged for all the week's turmoil.

Here are the figures: February 25 the Dow-Jones industrial index closed at 953.00. Friday, March 4 the closing was 932.34. But take the closing price on each of the 30 stocks on the index and the total value February 25 was $2,139.36. Divide by 30 and you get an average price of $71.31. At the following Friday's close, March 4, the market price of one each of the 30 was $2,094.40, for an average price of $69.80. The average loss thus is $1.51.

The reason the average actual price is so much lower than the Dow-Jones index is that the index has been adjusted many times over the years to allow for stock splits, stock dividends and the like. So today the total of the closing prices of the 30 blue chips is divided by 2,245, instead of 30.

Individually the losses for the week ranged from $4.75 for United Aircraft to 12 cents for American Tobacco. Gaining on the week were Allied Chemical, up $1.75; Alcoa, up $1; Union Carbide up 62 cents. American Can was unchanged.

Other of the larger losses were: Johns Manville at $3.62, Swift and Ananconda at $3.25 each and Texaco at $3.

None of the losses are welcomed by the holders of these shares. Nor is the effect of the wide swings in the popular averages, either on other stocks or on public psychology, good news on Wall Street.

But the public, reading only about the averages, may think that the stock price drop is much worse than it really is.

The averages serve a purpose in showing how the market is behaving — and furnishing an historical background. A Dow-Jones industrial index 932.34 looks bad when compared to its record of 995.15 early this year. But it looks good if compared with around 480 some 10 years ago.

Showdown Object of Viet Nam Moves

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP) — Both the American and Communist commands are pushing pieces onto the Viet Nam chessboard for the long awaited showdown tournament that could decide military tactics for decades to come.

Although both sides still are pulling their chessmen out of the box, the positions of the opposing sides are taking shape.

Narrow-waisted Viet Nam, with terrain ranging from swamps, jungle and delta paddy fields to coastal wastelands and rugged mountains, makes for a puzzling and confused board at best. The rules are being written as the players jockey for position and make their opening moves.

So far the Americans and non-Vietnamese allies are restricted to moving in three of the four army corps areas. The southernmost 4th Corps — the Mekong River delta — still is an all-South Vietnamese show. A focal point of the American buildup to 200,000 men is in the Saigon area where an iron umbrella is being created to shelter the capital from six or seven hard-core Viet Cong regiments.

A large part of the additional American troops expected to be sent to Viet Nam this year are likely to be thrown into the 3rd Army Corps which surrounds Saigon.

The western edge of the umbrella is 25 miles from Saigon at Cu Chi where the 2nd Brigade of the 25th Division has taken serious casualties just trying to wrest living space from the Viet Cong.

The American forward wall then swings through the Ben Cat-Lai Khe area, home of the 3rd Brigade of the 1st Infantry Division, to Phuoc Vinh, the area held by the 1st Division's 1st Brigade.

One flank of Saigon is held by the 2nd Brigade and the 173rd Airborne Brigade at Bien Hoa. This also is the site of a jet air-strip used by the Air Force in its daily poundings of the Viet Cong.

Future arrivals are expected to be stationed south of Saigon which, besides being the national capital, is the command and logistics hub of the allied effort.

The American command is concerned about the buildup in Viet Cong strength around the capital. Intelligence reports indicate that as many as eight enemy battalions are operating under the umbrella. So far these units have pretty much confined themselves to attacks on small posts, terrorism and propaganda.

Unconfirmed reports identify one of the battalions as a heavy weapons unit, possibly armed with 120mm mortars. There is speculation these might be used against the capital in case of an attack against Hanoi or Haiphong in North Viet Nam. Military attacks have been launched against police posts in the city's outskirts.

The 16,000-strong 1st Cavalry, Airborne, Division is based in An Khe, 250 miles northeast of Saigon. With some 450 helicopters at their disposal, the 1st Cavalry troops have jumped all over the board in the jungled vastness near the Cambodian border and operate also on the coast.

These lightning assaults are hard for the Viet Cong to handle, but sometimes leave American troops exposed in case one of the units runs into an overwhelming enemy force.

At the top of the board in the 1st Army Corps some 45,000 Marines are in position at three beachheads. Despite the Marines' tradition of crack assault troops, in Viet Nam their primary role has been one of defense with most of the emphasis on jet strips at Da Nang and Chu Lai. More than 100 jet fighter-bombers are divided between the bases.

Their pacification program is aimed at permitting the three coastal enclaves to link up and then expand control westward toward the mountains and Laos. One hundred miles separate Hue-Phu Bai in the north and Chu Lai in the south. The job of linking the beachheads will take more than one year by the most optimistic estimates.

Johnson Caught In Juggling Act

By JAMES MARLOW
AP News Analyst
WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson is caught in the middle of a tough juggling act, with no end in sight, which may do much to explain the quiet tone from the White House these days.

He wants to wage a successful war in Viet Nam, keep public support for his war policy, and at the same time answer critics, mostly Democrats, without splitting his party which must face the voters in November's congressional elections.

This will be quite a feat, if his patience holds out. Publicly he has been mild about the criticism. But anyone who knows him can hardly imagine him being mild about it within the privacy of the White House.

In 1964 he led the Democrats to overwhelming control of both houses of Congress. This year's will be the first congressional election since then. The result will show some public reaction to Johnson and his party.

Naturally, he wants the Democrats to come out smelling like a rose. But already there are deep divisions within the party over Johnson's conduct of the war. His critics are more concerned about that than party unity.

He would make the party division even more apparent if he began attacking his critics directly, since most of them are Democrats. There is another side to this coin, of course.

If Johnson went on television, well-publicized in advance to capture the greatest possible audience, with a full explanation of the war, he could answer his critics without naming them and probably win wider popular support.

Instead, he has mostly tried to answer his critics by using people around him, like Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey, Secretary of State Dean Rusk and Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara.

Other aides close to Johnson have presented the administration's case, too. The result has been less than spectacular. The critics appear unconvinced, and the criticism continues.

Just in case anyone was missing this spectacle of Democrats chewing on Democrats, House Republican leaders this week issued a statement which said in part: "The Democratic split is prolonging the war, undermining the morale of the American fighting men, and encouraging the Communist aggressor." They called on Johnson "to take command of his party."

Until he does take a stronger hand in dealing with his Democratic critics, instead of letting his aides carry the ball, the division within the party probably will get worse and public opinion get more confused.

For example, Humphrey and McNamara talked to the Senate Foreign Relations Committee whose chairman, Sen. J. W. Fulbright, Arkansas Democrat, is one of Johnson's most outspoken critics, just as he was after Johnson sent American troops to prevent what he said he feared: A Communist takeover in the Dominican Republic last spring.

After McNamara talked to the committee, Fulbright said he was not satisfied with the secretary's explanations and Sen. Joseph S. Clark, Pennsylvania Democrat, said McNamara was "very unconvincing."

After Humphrey talked to the Fulbright group, Fulbright said his own reservations about Johnson's Viet Nam policy had not been removed. And Sen. Frank Church, Idaho Democrat, said Humphrey had just provided a rehash of what he had said before.

Harassing Calls Not Widespread

WASHINGTON (AP) — Investigations by all the armed services have failed to turn up evidence of widespread harassing calls to wives and other dependents of U.S. servicemen in Viet Nam.

The Defense Department said today "it has been found that the incidences of such calls are slight."

Most of these calls have occurred in the 3rd Army area, with a scattering in the New York, Philadelphia, and Ft. Campbell, Ky., areas, the Pentagon said.

The 3rd Army encompasses North Carolina and South Carolina, Tennessee, Mississippi, Alabama, Florida and Georgia. There is a fairly heavy concentration of military installations in this area, with many wives living near military posts while their husbands are overseas.

"Although it has been reported in speculative pieces that this is an organized thing," the Pentagon said, "thus far there is no evidence to support this." The department was asked about the situation after there were reports from Ft. Bragg, N.C., that many wives of servicemen serving overseas are getting obscene or threatening phone calls.

There have been other reports of such harassment of wives of Navy men who served aboard the carrier Kitty Hawk in the Viet Nam area.

The Pentagon said that all the services began investigating the situation after a newspaper story appeared on the calls to wives of Kitty Hawk crewmen.

"The most disconcerting type of call has been someone saying that a person in Viet Nam has been killed, wounded, or captured," the Pentagon said.

"The calls primarily fall into the crank category, with the caller unidentified and generally showing no fixed pattern of comments," it added.

Local commanders "have taken necessary action to warn dependents of personnel departing for Viet Nam that this might occur," the Defense Department said.

Doctors Caught in Tidal Wave of Health Care

EDITOR'S NOTE -- With new demands pressing on it from all directions, American medicine today faces a time of crisis. But from this period of testing, new patterns of better health care may emerge. This is the first of five articles appraising the nation's medical picture today and tomorrow.

By ALTON BLAKESLEE
AP Science Writer
NEW YORK AP -- The young, dark-haired doctor in Boston paused, searching for his words.

"It's a tidal wave," he said. "There's simply a great tidal wave of demand and human need for more and better health care, boiling up all across the land."

Standing on the traditional shoreline, to meet this wave, are some 280,000 physicians, about 600,000 nurses, and 97,000 dentists.

Before the wave subsides, says a surgeon in Houston, it will strain, drown, or change many traditional ways of supplying the nation's medical manpower and meeting the health needs of its people.

In their place will rise some new structures in the house of medicine, new kinds of health assistants, new ways to keep people healthy, to extend life, to add to its quality.

This now is a time of crisis, of a serious shortage not only of doctors and nurses but also technologists and others possessing dozens of needed skills, according to many, though not all, leaders in various responsibilities of medical and health care.

The shortages "will get worse before they get better," authorities in many cities agree. The tidal wave springs from many sources:

1. Medicare, starting July 1, providing hospitalization under insurance for up to 18 million citizens of 65 or over.

Medicare is certain to increase demand for hospital beds, surgical, medical and nursing care. No one is sure how much.

2. Coming establishment of regional centers for heart disease, cancer and strokes, designed to spread the best, most modern knowledge and techniques more broadly through communities.

3. Spread of prepaid insurance plans for medical and hospital care, removing some of the financial hesitation to seek attention.

4. Growth of comprehensive community mental health centers, already provided for under federal and state laws.

5. Expansion of population -- there are nearly 200 million Americans now. And now many people know more about medicine; they expect more and better care.

6. And -- possibly most significant in total numbers -- millions of neglected poor people are being introduced to the chance for better health care. Deduct, on the home front, doctors drafted for military service to tend fighting men in Viet Nam. The last call, in February, was for 2,496 doctors. More may be needed if the war widens, if more men fall ill of malaria or other diseases resistant to present drugs.

All this surge of demand is rising to test a system of medicine, American medicine, which in many respects is the best in the world. At its highest level, it is without peer. It has many strengths, superb quality.

But already it is not without its soft spots. The United States has been importing doctors -- one in six doctors licensed each year was graduated from some foreign medical school. Doctors are not always available in emergencies. They are in short supply or lacking in some small towns and rural communities. Most hospitals lack 10 to 25 per cent of the nurses for whom they have positions.

Doctors are not all of equal skill and knowledge, any more than persons in any profession. New knowledge, new techniques flowing rapidly from research impose "continuing education" or else slippage of a physician's medical art, even to the point of mediocrity.

Of what use, many ask, is new life-saving knowledge if it is not applied quickly, and well?

Millions of poor people do not receive good or timely care, despite free clinics, despite donations of time by dedicated doctors.

And there are inevitable strains because "the doctor" is, after all, a human being -- like his patients.

Physicians can become overworked, harried, with a home life marred by missed dinner or theater engagements, by broken promises to their own children, because of emergencies. And they have legitimate complaints about some patients.

Every patient has some personal experience, and frequent gripe, about physicians or hospitals.

Perhaps there's no hope of resolving all such problems between patient and doctor or others giving health care to an individual.

But medicine is no exception to "the rapid turning of the wheels of change," writes Dr. Ward Darley of the Association of American Medical Colleges. There is no dearth of ideas, suggestions and proposals to remedy problems and to improve medical and health care.

A great trouble, says Dr. John H. Knowles, administrator of Massachusetts General Hospital in Boston, "is that everyone is feeling just part of the elephant. No one feels much commitment outside the area of his own interest."

And it is a big, odd and complicated elephant. Next: parts of the "elephant."

milestone. Had my 84th birthday last Wed. March 2. I'm not 84 yrs. old, I'm 84 yrs. young only thing false about me is my teeth. I entertained a group of long time friends at Rustic Rock in Sikeston.

Those present were Cordia Farmer, Vongie Hurst, Bertha Collier, Alma Schwab, Helen Bagby and Clara Patrick. I had a thick steak rare in the middle brown on both sides. Shrimp and cherry pie and ice cream. There was a lovely centerpiece of yellow mums and after dinner we played bingo till late in the afternoon.

I received many lovely gifts. Susie and Frankie Beard gave me candy and stationary and then Susie wanted to help me eat the candy.

I remember way back when I wore bustles, polonaise skirts and high heels that pinched my toes and made my corns hurt. My mommy laced me in corsets so I would be 22 inches around the waist. She would hitch the string to the door and pull & pull. I had to go to bed when I got my first corset & high heeled shoes. I said I'd rather go barefooted, said I'd have big feet then. Pulled my teeth by tying a string to the door knob. Weren't many dentists around then.

THE CITY OF SIKESTON, MISSOURI Resolution

A resolution declaring the necessity for the construction of 11 1/2" hotmix asphaltic pavement on 6" soil cement base with concrete curb and gutter on Comstock Place from Crowe Street to termination in accordance with plans and specifications in the City of Sikeston, Missouri; stating the nature of the improvement; the estimated cost and providing that payment for all of the improvement shall be made by special tax bills levied and assessed against the abutting property.

Be it resolved by the Council of the City of Sikeston, State of Missouri, as follows: Section 1: That the Council of the City of Sikeston, Missouri, deems and declares the construction of said Street necessary to the welfare and improvement of the City of Sikeston, Missouri.

Section 2: That the nature and scope of the improvement shall consist of furnishing all cost, including labor, materials and transportation necessary for the complete construction of the improvement.

Section 3: That the estimated cost of the improvement is $4,600 per lineal foot of abutting property, to be charged against the lots and tracts of land abutting the improvement.

Section 4: That payment for all of the improvement shall be made by special tax bills levied and assessed against the abutting property in the manner specified by the statutes of the State of Missouri and the ordinances of the City of Sikeston, Missouri, because in the opinion of the City Council the General Revenue fund of the City of Sikeston is not in a condition to warrant an expenditure therefrom to pay for the improvement.

Section 5: That any work performed on construction of the improvement shall be in compliance with the provisions of the prevailing wage laws of the State of Missouri, such prevailing wage rates having been established by the Industrial Commission of Missouri. Section 6: That the City Clerk is hereby authorized and directed to furnish a copy of this Resolution to a daily newspaper of general circulation in the City of Sikeston, so that it shall be published for seven consecutive insertions. Read the first, second, and third times and passed and approved this 7th day of March, 1966. Approved: Kendall Sikes, Mayor; Attest: John W. Vaughn, City Clerk. 140 inc. 146

Resolution

A resolution declaring the necessity for the construction of 11 1/2" hotmix asphaltic pavement on 6" soil cement base with concrete curb and gutter on Comstock Place from Crowe Street to termination in accordance with plans and specifications in the City of Sikeston, Missouri; stating the nature of the improvement; the estimated cost and providing that payment for all of the improvement shall be made by special tax bills levied and assessed against the abutting property.

Be it resolved by the Council of the City of Sikeston, State of Missouri, as follows: Section 1: That the Council of the City of Sikeston, Missouri, deems and declares the construction of said Street necessary to the welfare and improvement of the City of Sikeston, Missouri.

Section 2: That the nature and scope of the improvement shall consist of furnishing all cost, including labor, materials and transportation necessary for the complete construction of the improvement.

Section 3: That the estimated cost of the improvement is $4,600 per lineal foot of abutting property, to be charged against the lots and tracts of land abutting the improvement.

Section 4: That payment for all of the improvement shall be made by special tax bills evidencing special assessments against the abutting property in the manner specified by the statutes of the State of Missouri and the ordinances of the City of Sikeston, Missouri, because in the opinion of the City Council the General Revenue fund of the City of Sikeston is not in a condition to warrant an expenditure therefrom to pay for the improvement.

Section 5: That any work performed on construction of the improvement shall be in compliance with the provisions of the prevailing wage laws of the State of Missouri, such prevailing wage rates having been established by the Industrial Commission of Missouri, Section 6: That the City Clerk is hereby authorized and directed to furnish a copy of this Resolution to a daily newspaper of general circulation in the City of Sikeston, so that it shall be published for seven consecutive insertions, Read the first, second, and third times and passed and approved this 7th day of March, 1966. Approved: Kendall Sikes, Mayor; Attest: John W. Vaughn, City Clerk.

Car Stereo Catching on Across U. S.

By BOB THOMAS
HOLLYWOOD (AP) -- Just when you think that the entertainment industry has developed every possible medium, along comes a new one.

This time it's stereo music in your car. No commercials, no screaming disc jockeys. Just stereophonic music to help you while away the miles on the highway.

The tape cartridge market is the talk of the recording business, and both record companies and car dealers are anxiously eyeing the millions that might be reaped from the new field.

Car stereo seems so simple that it is surprising that someone didn't develop it sooner. Speakers are spotted in various locations in the car. A player is located under the dashboard.

All the driver has to do is turn on the machine and insert a plastic cartridge containing a continuous loop of tape. Instant stereo.

According to Billboard, which devoted a full issue to tape-cartridge recently, the new business started with the invention of George Eash, a Los Angeles engineer. He began tinkering with a continuous-play tape in 1953 and four years later had developed a cartridge that contained 1,200 feet, or an hour of music.

Four years ago, Earl Muntz, the onetime Madman Muntz of used-car selling started merchandising car installations and tape cartridges. The big push for the industry came last year when Ford offered as an optional feature in its 1966 cars a car stereo system developed jointly by RCA and Lear Jet Corp.

What does car stereo cost? If you were buying a new Thunderbird, you could get a player for $127.56. Installations can be made in your present car from $79.95 up. Cartridges cost from $2.95 for the cheaper pops to $6.98 for longhair music. Most home tape recorders don't handle cartridges.

Felt-tipped marking pens can be used to cover scuff marks on shoes and worn spots on handbags. They're available in almost any color.

John R. Gaty, Merchant, Bertrand, Dies

CHARLESTON -- John R. Gaty, 71, died at his home today at 9 a.m., following five weeks illness from a heart ailment. He was a Bertrand grocery merchant.

He was born Jan. 2, 1895, son of Robert and Julia Humphries Gaty. He was a veteran of World War I.

Surviving are his wife, Mrs. Elva P. Gaty; one daughter, Mrs. Catherine Kirschner, Charlottesville, Va.; two sisters, Mrs. Maude Rushing and Mrs. Irene Voelker, both of Bertrand; and three grandchildren.

The body is at the Nunnelee Funeral Home.

Mrs. Wilkinson Dies at Home

Mrs. Eula Ruth Wilkinson, 65, 112 West Wakefield, died at 1:25 a.m. today at her home. She had not been ill previously.

She was born Aug. 25, 1900, in Greenville, the daughter of George T. and Cora Wynn Barrow. On Oct. 9, 1925, she married Carl C. Wilkinson, who survives.

Other survivors are two daughters, Mrs. Bob McCord and Mrs. Bill Johnson of East Prairie; one son, Jerry Wilkinson with the army at Fort Leonard Wood; two sisters, Mrs. Clarence Watson of Detroit and Mrs. Irene McCarty of Birmingham, Mich.; five brothers, S. M. Barrow of Lehigh Acres, Fla.; H. E. Barrow of Greenville; James V. Barrow of Detroit; R. W. Barrow of Warren, Mich.; and Vernon Barrow with the army in Japan and six grandchildren.

Services will be at 10:30 a.m. Saturday in the Nunnelee Funeral Chapel with the Rev. Myron E. Neal, pastor of the First Christian church, officiating. Graveside rites and burial will be at 2:30 p.m. Saturday in the Masonic cemetery in Piedmont.

Althea May Book Dies Monday

MALDEN -- Mrs. Althea Mae Book, 76, died Monday at the Pemiscot County Memorial hospital in Hayti.

She had been a resident of Malden many years.

A member of the Eastern Star and Rebekah lodges, she took an active part in the work of the organizations and had held various offices for both. She was a member of the Malden Methodist church.

Mrs. Book was born Nov. 22, 1889 at Dexter, the daughter of James M. and Catherine Dunn Gaines. She was married in 1907 to Jefferson Roark Book, who survives.

Services were this afternoon at 2 p.m. at the Landess Chapel. Rev. R. B. McCoy will officiate and burial was in Park cemetery with Landess in charge.

Other than her husband, she is survived by three sons, Cecil of Caruthersville, James of San Antonio, Texas, and Kenneth of Orange, Texas; a daughter, Mrs. Gwendolyn Whittlesey, Orange, Texas; a brother, Rev. Cal Gaines and a sister, Mrs. Maude Fletcher, both of Dexter, eight grandchildren; and two great-grandchildren.

Mrs. Lillyan Miller Services Are Held

BENTON -- Services for Mrs. Lillyan Miller, 75 years old, of Cape Girardeau were held Wednesday at the St. Denis Catholic church. The Rev. James Holmes officiated, and burial was in Memorial Park at Cape Girardeau.

Palbearers were Lloyd Diamond, Henry, Pat and Ervin Urhahn, Joe Spadling and Hess Porter.

Mrs. Miller died Monday in a Jackson nursing home.

Mrs. Hattie Walter Services Held Today

ORAN -- Services for Mrs. Hattie May Walter were Thursday at 2 p.m. at the Earl J. Smith Funeral Home. Burial will be in Friend cemetery.

Mrs. Walter died Tuesday morning at a Cape Girardeau hospital. She was 69.

James M. Lambert Services Conducted

MORLEY -- Services for James Madison Lambert will be held Thursday at the Morley Baptist church with the Rev. Liston Smith officiating.

Burial will be in New Morley cemetery. The body is at the Ridgeway Funeral Home in Paris, Tenn.

regular Viet Cong troops. Before the collapse, helicopters flew out "a certain number of defenders," Lacey said. He gave no figures. The camp was defended by 15 to 20 Americans and about 300 Montagnards they had trained.

Three U.S. aircraft -- two planes and a helicopter -- were lost in the determined effort to save the camp.

Car Stereo Catching on Across U. S.

By BOB THOMAS
HOLLYWOOD (AP) -- Just when you think that the entertainment industry has developed every possible medium, along comes a new one.

This time it's stereo music in your car. No commercials, no screaming disc jockeys. Just stereophonic music to help you while away the miles on the highway.

The tape cartridge market is the talk of the recording business, and both record companies and car dealers are anxiously eyeing the millions that might be reaped from the new field.

Car stereo seems so simple that it is surprising that someone didn't develop it sooner. Speakers are spotted in various locations in the car. A player is located under the dashboard.

All the driver has to do is turn on the machine and insert a plastic cartridge containing a continuous loop of tape. Instant stereo.

According to Billboard, which devoted a full issue to tape-cartridge recently, the new business started with the invention of George Eash, a Los Angeles engineer. He began tinkering with a continuous-play tape in 1953 and four years later had developed a cartridge that contained 1,200 feet, or an hour of music.

Four years ago, Earl Muntz, the onetime Madman Muntz of used-car selling started merchandising car installations and tape cartridges. The big push for the industry came last year when Ford offered as an optional feature in its 1966 cars a car stereo system developed jointly by RCA and Lear Jet Corp.

What does car stereo cost? If you were buying a new Thunderbird, you could get a player for $127.56. Installations can be made in your present car from $79.95 up. Cartridges cost from $2.95 for the cheaper pops to $6.98 for longhair music.

Most home tape recorders don't handle cartridges.

Felt-tipped marking pens can be used to cover scuff marks on shoes and worn spots on handbags. They're available in almost any color.

Today In U. S. History

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Today is Thursday, March 10, the 69th day of 1966. There are 296 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history: On this date in 1933, earthquakes in Southern California killed 120 persons and caused 50 million dollars in damage.

On this date

In 1864, Gen. Ulysses S. Grant was made commander in chief of the Union armies.

In 1876, the first intelligible sentence was transmitted by telephone. The sentence, "Come here, Watson, I want you," was spoken by Alexander Graham Bell.

In 1941, President Franklin D. Roosevelt signed the Lend-Lease Act.

In 1945, U.S. Superfortresses dumped 1,000 tons of fire bombs on Tokyo.

Ten years ago -- A special Senate committee to investigate lobbying and campaign contributions elected Sen. John McClellan, D-Ark., its chairman.

Five years ago -- A fire in a coal mine in Fukuoka, Japan, killed 71 miners.

One year ago -- A communique was issued in Moscow, at the end of a Communist party meeting, called for an end to bitterness between Moscow and Peking.

Matthews News

Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Reed attended funeral services at Champaign, Ill., on Saturday for Earl Wooden. Mr. Wooden, a friend of many years, had visited here with members of his family who had land holdings here which the Reeds farmed and have since purchased.

Mrs. Helen Sibley is reported to be progressing satisfactorily from surgery which she underwent at Missouri Delta Hospital on Tuesday. W. S. Brundage has been hospitalized there for the past two weeks and is improved. James Lomax is reported to be improved after having undergone surgery and a bout with pneumonia. Mrs. Florence Wilson was admitted to the hospital on Thursday. Walter Beck underwent surgery on Thursday at Baptist Hospital in Memphis, Tenn. W. C. Moore is reported to be improving at Barnes Hospital in St. Louis where he has been a medical patient the past three weeks. Glenda, the ten-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Lomax, was admitted to the Cardinal Glennon Hospital in St. Louis for surgery which had to be postponed when she developed a cold.

Mr. and Mrs. Larry Greene were complimented with a miscellaneous household shower on Thursday evening at the Christian Church dining room. The Greene's had the misfortune of losing all their clothing and household furnishings in a fire on February 24 which destroyed the farm home near Gideon where they began house-keeping in December.

Nelson Lumsden, Larry Long, Joe Silverthorn, and C. G. Scott, Jr., attended the District 10 Christian Men's fellowship meeting at the Festus Christian Church Sunday afternoon and evening.
